'No Easy Deals With Russia'

Eisenhower Tells Italian Leaders That Western Unity Comes First

ROME (CP) — President Eisenhower told Italy's leaders today the United States never will sacrifice Western unity for the sake of a quick, easy deal with the Soviet Union.

He made the pledge to Premier Antonio Segni on the second day of his visit to Rome, first stop on his 11-country "mission of peace."

Informed sources said the American president, in his talks with Segni, asserted that the United States favors pressing ahead with regional defence alliances such as the Atlantic Pact until there are safeguarded agreements with the Russians.

This morning Eisenhower declared that his objective in his global goodwill tour is to help create a better world for his grandchildren than he knew himself. He made this pledge before going into the talks with Segni and the other government leaders.

INTERPRET AMERICA

Standing before about 900 Italian and American employees of the U.S. Embassy here, Eisenhower made a solemn pledge to "try to interpret America to other people a little bit more emphatically."

European Press Hails Ike's Tour

ROME (Reuters) — European newspapers of every political hue are warmly hailing President Eisenhower's visit here. The official Communist party newspaper L'Unita says Italians feel "a new dawn of peace is at hand."

An independent West German newspaper says Eisenhower is proving that Nikita Khrushchev has no monopoly on "personal diplomacy."

In London the Conservative paper Daily Mail, in an editorial headlined "epic journey," calls Eisenhower's trip a supreme effort to maintain the momentum of the peace movement and give unity to the West and confidence to the neutrals.

DALAI LAMA WON'T SEE IKE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has quietly turned down an overture by the exiled Dalai Lama of Tibet for a meeting with President Eisenhower in India next week.

Officials said the U.S. was "indirectly" sounded out on the idea after the Dalai Lama publicly expressed hope that he might meet Eisenhower. There was no direct communication between the 23-year-old Buddhist god-king and the president.

a little bit more accurately than has been done."

The president went to the embassy directly from placing a wreath at the tomb of Italy's unknown soldier.

This was the first of a round of activities on his second rain-whipped day in the eternal city. From the embassy the president went to Quirinal Palace and started his talks with Segni.

The persistent downpour which attended his arrival Friday continued, but it appeared to have no effect on the president's high spirits.

While roadside crowds shouted "Viva Ike," he waved smilingly from the rolled-down window of his closed car as he rode to and from the wreath ceremony. The rain kept the crowd down to about 9,000 at the ceremony.

The first two days of the president's 22,000-mile tour of 11 countries have been demanding, but Eisenhower, although he seemed a bit tired at times, appeared to be taking it in stride.

CANADA'S STAKE IN JAPAN

Industrial Giant Poses Challenge

This is the seventh in a series of articles by the editor of the Times after a visit to Japan at the invitation of that country's government.

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

When I visited it a few weeks ago the great Kanebo textile mill in Osaka was running cloth through its dyeing and printing presses at the rate of 150 yards a minute. Despite this speed, the finished product looked infinite in variety, exquisite in color, superb in quality. Any Canadian who supposes that Japan's products are made mainly by hand labor in sweat shops should see this gigantic plant—light, airy, almost entirely automatic and equipped with the most modern machines yet invented.

As I watched the miles of cloth enter the press as crude bleached cotton and emerge, minutes later, a quarter of a mile away, as lovely patterned stuff for women's dresses, men's shirts, window drapes, or any other conceivable use, a travelling crane dropped two huge wooden bales of finished export products nearby. One of them bore the address of Vancouver, the second of Montreal.

Here, then, in one article among thousands, was the kind of competition which the industry of Canada must meet, not only in its own market, but in markets throughout the world.

The issue before Canada and other Western nations was as clear as that mill as it has been printed in English, on the moving cloth. They can compete with Japan by improving their techniques and holding down their costs; or

BOY RESCUES BROTHERS BUT DIES WITH SISTER

WARREN, Ont. (CP)—A 10-year-old boy and the sister he was trying to save both died in their burning farm home today in this community 35 miles east of Sudbury.

Two other children escaped because of the efforts of the boy, Ernie Salemlink, one of the four children of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Salemlink. But he and his sister, Maria, 8, were overcome by smoke and died in the blaze.

Police said the fire broke out about 7 a.m. while the mother and father were in the barn and the children were still in bed. Ernie roused his brothers, Willie, 13, and Alex, 11, and got them onto the porch roof by smashing a window.

BUT SMITH TOPS QUIZ

Scurrah Wins On Applause

By JOHN MIKA

About 600 persons Friday night gave Mayor Percy Scurrah 52 seconds of applause, J. Donald Smith 37 seconds, and Robert Macmillan 11 seconds after the three mayoralty candidates spoke on the same public platform.

They met before the same audience for the first time in the current hot election campaign at the annual Junior Chamber of Commerce civic forum in Central Junior High School.

Mayor Scurrah was called to the microphone to answer a few questions after the speeches were over but the audience peppered Mr. Smith with three times as many—despite chairman Eric Charman's plea that the crowd aim questions at other candidates. Mr. Macmillan, an ex-alderman who entered the race only Thursday only minutes before nominations closed, did not draw a single query.

Main discussion centred on the $1,000,000 View Street parking bylaw that was blocked by Mr. Smith's current lawsuit.

Lone Heckler Draws the Laughs

Mild heckling prevailed throughout most of the meeting, coming mainly from Hal Beasley, former Olympic runner, who described himself as

"just an old-timer" to reporters. His quips frequently brought laughter from the crowd.

But Ald. Arthur Dowell at one point made an angry outburst during Mr. Smith's speech.

Mr. Smith claimed he presented a petition of "nearly 5,000 names" seeking a revote on the View Street bylaw when he addressed city council earlier this year.

"You did not," cried out Ald. Dowell. "Tell the truth."

(After the meeting, Ald. Dowell said he was in the chair at that particular council session as acting mayor and Mr. Smith did not present any petition of any kind to the council.)

Mayor Scurrah, who spoke first after the three men drew lots, offered himself for a third term "because I believe

7 Survivors Spotted Beside Downed Plane

VAL D'OR, Que. (UPI) —

All seven persons aboard a twin-engine Beechcraft were reported to have survived today when the plane made a crash-landing during a sleet storm about 100 miles north of here.

The plane, owned by the Dan Lamothe Construction Co., carried the wife of a Quebec cabinet minister, another woman, two newspapermen, one other man and a crew of two.

An RCMP search plane spotted the downed Beechcraft early this afternoon. It had

THIS SANTA NO MYTH

'You Better Watch Out...'

By LAMAR FALKNER

NEW YORK (AP)—Santa Claus has his eye on bad boys and girls, and he isn't waiting for Christmas Eve to leave sticks and stones in their stockings.

A rather tired and frowzy Santa stood on Harlem Street corners during the last two weeks clanging his bell and singing Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer.

In his pockets he carried lollipops. In his hand he rattled a container for coins. In his head he carried a photo and data file on drug traffickers.

SANTA'S HELPERS

Always near Santa were his helpers—two down-and-out loafers. When Santa spotted a familiar face in the crowd, he would shift his bell from one hand to the other. The loafers would saunter over, discreetly separate the face from the crowd, and search him.

Sometimes they found that the suspect's holiday cheer stemmed from the dope in his pocket—in which case the suspect was told the facts of life: this was not the real Santa Claus at all but just a playlike Santa, namely narcotics squad detective Edward Egan. The helpers were detectives Richard Pardo and Salvatore Grosso.

Friday, as Pardo and Grosso closed in on Kathleen Johnson, 27, the woman dropped 10 envelopes, each containing enough heroin for one injection. Pardo and Grosso pretended to overlook the envelopes, but Santa Claus Egan shuffled over and absent-mindedly picked them up.

At a police station, the woman demanded: "What are you pulling me in for? You haven't got any evidence!"

WAIT FOR SANTA

"Wait 'til Santy comes," replied Detective Pardo.

In another incident, what appeared to be a Harlem housewife coyly dropped a coin in Santa Egan's cup and held out her hand for a lollipop. Egan shifted his clattering bell and his helpers moved in.

The housewife turned out to be something of a masquerader, too—not a housewife at all but rather Fred (Beaut) Cotton, 35, in woman's attire complete with lady's shoes and girdle. Grosso and Pardo said they found 30 packets of heroin on him.

Detroit Wins Hockey

DETROIT — Detroit Red Wings defeated Boston Bruins 4-3 here this afternoon in a National Hockey League game.

Wings moved into a 4-1 lead but had to hang on to win as the Bruins came through with a pair of goals late in the third period.

Faces 'Greatest Danger'

WASHINGTON (AP)—A declining military position has left the United States facing the greatest danger in its history, a university research group said today.

In a study prepared for the Senate foreign relations committee the group called for an all-out effort to develop a powerful, reliable ballistic missile and get it into full-scale production.

"The military position of the United States declined in the short span of 15 years from one of unchallenged security to that of a nation both open and vulnerable to direct and devastating attack," said the study prepared by a Johns Hopkins University research group.

At the same time, developments in military technology in the Soviet Union now make it appear Russia will be the first to achieve a comprehensive missile arm, the study continued. It added:

"It is this possibility that disturbs those who see in the 'missile gap' of the early 1960s the greatest danger to its security that the United States has ever faced."

OPPOSES DISARMAMENT

The study strongly opposed an arms control policy aimed at total disarmament, as suggested by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev. It argued such policy would permit a violator to gain supremacy through concealed production of relatively few weapons.

Instead, it urged the United States to strive for an agreement with Russia calling for strategic forces "limited to retaliatory systems capable of surviving a first strike, but sufficient for employment in a first strike."

The Johns Hopkins researchers took issue with those who have urged a shift of emphasis from military to economic aid abroad.

"While military defence needs to be supplemented by economic, psychological and other policies," it said, "the provision of adequate and appropriate military strength is the precondition of world security."

UN Hungary Debate Set

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The UN announced today the General Assembly will meet Monday to debate question of Hungary.

Sir Leslie Munro of New Zealand, UN special representative on the question, will present a report in which he speaks of "the imminent possibility of further executions" of anti-Communists.

The debate is expected to run through Tuesday.

'A LIFE TRANSFORMED IS INDEED A MIRACLE'

"It is indeed a miracle," said Dr. Lotta Hirschmanova on her visit here this week "to completely transform the life of a little child."

This is the objective of the "Korean Crippled Kiddies Fund" drive on behalf of the Unitarian Services Committee started by the Times.

Money raised will build a rehabilitation centre for maimed children in Seoul.

Since the Christmas appeal opened Friday, the fund has already passed the $400 mark. International work of the USC, endorsed by the United Nations, Canadian and U.S. governments, has also a fundamental appeal to individuals.

Function is loving, yet non-sentimental; imaginative, yet practical.

Red tape is slashed and expenses of operation honed thin.

Volunteers work across Canada on behalf of the USC, and only paid staff is a small group at Ottawa headquarters.

Cheques may be made out to the Korean Crippled Kiddies Fund and mail donations should be addressed to the Victoria Times. Cash donations will be accepted at the Times main office, 2631 Douglas, or at the downtown office, 1215 Broad.

All donations will be acknowledged in this newspaper and will be deductible for income tax purposes.

Columbia Power Confirmed

THE CANADIAN GOVERNMENT seems to have knocked the main props from under the Wenner-Gren power scheme. Federal policy, as announced here this week by Mr. Howard Green, flatly contradicts the plans of the Peace River promoters in two vital respects.

First, while the promoters rely for markets and profits mainly on exports of power to the United States, Mr. Green says his Government will not alter the long-standing Canadian prohibition of exports.

On this point the foreign minister and responsible spokesman of the federal Government leaves no room for doubt. He says that the historic Canadian barrier against exports—enforced since the nineteen-twenties—"would probably not be modified to suit one group of promoters." Such a change could come, he adds, if it were in the national interest and "it is certainly not of Canada-wide interest at the moment."

Where does this leave a Peace River scheme based on the American power market? That is a question for the promoters and the potential buyers of their stock to consider, but one thing is clear and gratifying: The Wenner-Gren organization has received no private go-ahead signal from Ottawa, its plans conflict directly with national policy and it is only the federal Government, not Mr. Bennett which can allow power exports.

Mr. Green's second point further clarifies his first by denying the propaganda line of the Wenner-Gren promoters.

Their whole scheme is founded primarily on the proposition that the Columbia River cannot be harnessed to produce cheap power for many years. Therefore, the much more expensive Peace power must be harnessed right away to avoid a future electrical famine.

Not so, says Mr. Green. In his view—and he is the man in charge of negotiations with the United States—the Columbia scheme should get under way next year and deliver power by 1968. Even if it is feasible without exports, the Peace River scheme could not produce power any sooner than that.

Understandably, Mr. Green is not picking a quarrel with Mr. Bennett, sponsor of Mr. Wenner-

Gren, but it is obvious that federal and provincial policy toward the Peace is in direct disagreement. When asked if the development of surplus power on the Peace might not delay the Columbia development, Mr. Green makes a discreet reply: "The people of B.C. will have to answer that for themselves."

In plainer terms, Mr. Green seems to be saying that if British Columbia goes ahead with the Peace River scheme, at the cost of postponing the Columbia, then that is British Columbia's own responsibility. Assuredly it is, and the people must pay the resulting power costs.

In thus putting the issue straight up to the people of British Columbia, Mr. Green adds a sharp warning. The competitive threat of nuclear power, he says, looms over all hydro-electrical projects and therefore the Columbia's potential "certainly isn't going to last forever."

This can be taken to mean only that the federal Government is trying to get the Columbia scheme under way in the near future but if the Wenner-Gren promotion blocks it, then we may never get the cheap Columbia power at all and must use more expensive Peace power.

Mr. Green's statement does not alter federal policy in any way but, on the contrary maintains it as it has been maintained by successive governments for some forty years. But in recent times that policy has been blurred by a steady stream of propaganda emanating from Mr. Bennett and the Wenner-Gren promoters.

Now they know exactly where they stand. So do the power consumers of British Columbia. So do the investors who are expected to finance the Peace River scheme.

Nevertheless, we may expect Mr. Bennett to present that scheme as a sure thing, to give it his Government's approval and to make it the major issue of next year's election.

The federal Government cannot control Mr. Bennett within provincial jurisdiction but it can, and evidently will, prevent the alienation of Canadian power to a foreign country and will press the Columbia scheme to an early conclusion—provided Mr. Bennett doesn't stand in the way to help Mr. Wenner-Gren.

In the Wake of War

FOR MOST CANADIANS, EXCEPT those households which preserve the memory of a fallen serviceman, the Korean war is a thing of the past. Other great international events and crises have occurred in the intervening years—history has moved on from the little Asian peninsula.

But for many inhabitants of that country the war is not over, it will never be over for the rest of their lives. They are the adults and children who still bear the scars of a war that was forced on them by aggression, they are the people who for the rest of their days will hobble on one leg, struggle to perform tasks with one arm, lie helpless in a bed because of multiple amputations or paralysis.

This Christmas season, as for the past six years, The Times is sponsoring the local campaign of the Unitarian Service Committee, an international agency which raises funds to expend in the service of the needy and afflicted in all parts of the world.

In past years the money of Victorians—and generous people throughout Canada—has gone to buy milk for hungry children, bowls of rice for the destitute, bricks for a TB pavilion and similar charitable projects.

Those who heard the moving address of Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, the executive director of the USC, here on Thursday evening will need no urging to help the fund—the speaker, from her first-hand knowledge, brought the tragedies and miseries of many of Asia's millions home with stark reality.

The money raised this year will go to provide a rehabilitation centre in Seoul, Korea, in an effort to help the 50,000 children of that country who were mutilated in one way or another by the war. Whatever is done will not be enough, but even a little will help.

That is why The Times is sponsoring an appeal again this year. The success of previous appeals gives assurance that the call will be heard and answered with Victoria's traditional generosity.

Mr. Bonner's Red Herring

MR. BONNER SAYS THE GOVERNMENT will not release the Carrothers Report on the civil service because of an ultimatum issued by its employees.

This explanation won't wash. It won't wash because the Government had ample time to release the report before any ultimatum was delivered, and because the contents of the report concern public business, information to which the taxpayers are entitled.

There is no excuse for withholding publication and there never was.

Refusal to make it public is not justified by hurt Government pride. The heroic pose of a cabinet resolved to resist the threat of an ultimatum is a red-herring that has been left too long in the sun.

The people of British Columbia are entitled to know what an investigation of the civil service, for which they pay, has disclosed.

Perhaps, to ease the tender sensibilities of Mr. Bonner a way could be found around the impasse. Let the Government refuse to tell the civil servants, if it must be adamant on that point, but by all means let it tell the public.

Cultural Exchange, of Course

AN ADDRESS BY PROF. YURI Demetiev of the Arts Institute of the Soviet Academy of Sciences suggests a new cultural exchange in which we ought to be able to participate.

Prof. Demetiev has been spanking Russia's clowns for their lack of attention to politics. He says: "Today the politically untrained clown cannot be a good clown."

If Russia lacks political clowns, we can think of a few we could export.

As Our Readers See It

To Beautify City

Tulsa, Oklahoma, is rated to be America's most beautiful city.

"No smoke or fumes" to darken its "clear blue skies," beglaze buildings or trees. Streets and gutters are scrubbed and washed down daily.

Tulsa uses modern methods for heat and power. By the enthusiastic support of its citizens, civic beautification has become a reality.

Victoria too, could win the title of Canada's most beautiful city. Perhaps here is the "magic" to draw an all-year-round tourist trade, one more industry to increase employment. Start today to cleanse our island atmosphere, then, tell the world to come here (especially those with respiratory trouble) to enrich their blood stream, breathe in sweet, pure air, and "live".

CHARLES CLARKE.

Residence and Pension

I agree with Mr. Robert McNeil in his letter re pension restrictions and freedom to live where they wish—also that 20 years' residence in Canada should be obligatory. Having lived in Canada since 1900 I consider it only fair to others.

But as I said in a former letter it is not fair to insist on all-year residence.

I wish to thank our member, Mr. McPhillips, for his action in this matter. He deserves our full support and thanks.

HE SUFFERED FROM AN OVERDEVELOPED HEART

The Knight Errant Who Erred on the Side of the Angels

By TONY EMERY

I HAVE been told that New York impresarios consider Victoria to be the most unpredictable city on the North American continent.

It is, they say, quite impossible to estimate how big an audience will turn up to any form of entertainment. This view received some support from the surprisingly large crowds that turned out to see the Russian version of "Don Quixote" shown here at the beginning of the week; but I am sure they would agree with me that they got their money's worth.

The part of Don Quixote (whose name my cosmopolitan and well-educated friends pronounce "Kee-ho-tay") which leads me to wonder how they deal with those two perfectly good English words "quixotic" and "quixotism," "Kee-ho-try"? "Kee-ho-tic"? I can't help thinking that sounds a little precious!

was played magnificently by Cherkasov, whom I take to be one of the half-dozen best actors alive.

Do you remember his tremendous performance in "Ivan the Terrible"?

I shall never forget the scene in which, to all intents and purposes a dying man, he went on his knees to one great man after another, pleading with them to recognize his infant son as Czar. Outside the great tragedies of Shakespeare, I have not seen anything to equal that harrowing episode.

Physically his Quixote was modelled on the familiar engravings by Dore, so it is no wonder he satisfied the preconceived notion most of us have of what the poor deluded Don looked like. Mounted on a Rocinante skinny enough for verisimilitude without being pathetic enough to call out the SPCA pickets, he resembled, too, the White Knight immortalized in Tenniel's illustrations for "Alice through the Looking Glass," particularly when he took his first toss.

But it wasn't the superb acting of Cherkasov that made the biggest impression on me; nor was it the equally impressive acting of Tolubeyev as Sancho, although I am unlikely to forget the remarkable sight of these two on their respective quadrupeds outlined against the barren hills.

What really set me thinking was the way the essential humanity of the Don and the shrewd peasant common-sense of Sancho were emphasized; against these qualities the cold indifference of the rulers cast its bleak shadow in vain.

If this is to be the burden of Communist propaganda from now on, then let me hasten to join the Party, for I am a firm believer in the ultimate victory of the warm human qualities over efficiency, organization, bureaucracy and the State. It is not a little surprising, though, to see such sympathetic treatment of Cervantes' story by a director presumably well versed in the rebarbative principles of Marxism-Leninism, since the underlying theme of the story is, surely, that all schemes dedicated to the general improvement of the lot of all mankind are doomed to failure.

I doubt if this message would have received Lenin's hearty endorsement, since he was apparently hellbent on improving Man's lot—even if he had to kill several millions in the process. Genial Joe Stalin didn't strike me as a fanatical supporter of any theory that put warmth and humanity above everything else, but perhaps I misunderstood him.

Oddly enough, I find that "Don Quixote" ties in very neatly with certain views urged by E. M. Forster, who has been much in my mind recently. Forster holds that two things are paramount in life: the ability to distinguish between what is real and basic and permanent and what is merely conventional, habitual and fleeting; and the necessity of establishing and maintaining satisfactory personal relations with our fellow-humans.

The Don was weak on the first, though Sancho's shrewdness helped him here, and successful in his misdirected efforts to achieve the second; but nobody could have accused him of possessing an "undeveloped heart," the term Forster fastens on those who exalt administrative convenience over basic human needs.

The Don's fault was that he suffered from an overdeveloped heart, but this is a fault that can be more easily condoned than its opposite. Can we have too much of the milk of human kindness?

Isn't part of the world's present trouble caused by the fact that if this particular milk were available in large quantities our rulers would find some way to fall out over it, if only about the size of the cartons it was to be packed in?

If people can get on with each other, and nations cannot, then the sooner we do away with nations the better, it seems to me. I believe in democracy for the same reason as Forster, that it is "less hateful than any other contemporary form of government," but I believe there are some things more important than material goods or political systems, and chief of these is Love, as defined by Socrates, Buddha, Jesus and others.

So three cheers for Cervantes, and a standing ovation for the gawky Don, the knight errant who erred on the side of the angels.

FROM WASHINGTON

Presidential Calls Abroad May Create Political Echoes

AS is often the case nowadays, there is a wide difference between the public presentation of the President's foreign trip, and the practical, expert judgment of it. The trip has been presented to the country as a ground tour in the cause of peace, which is to culminate, in Paris, in a grand effort to secure Western unity before the summit meeting with Nikita S. Khrushchev.

It will of course be good public relations for this country, for the President to visit India and the other places he plans to visit. But good public relations will not serve the cause of peace.

For the long run, in fact, foreign visits that are merely aimed to generate "good will" serve hardly any purpose at all. The kind of good will that is generated in this manner is approximately as durable as dry ice.

As to the trip's climax, every experienced diplomat agrees that if any real progress towards Western unity is made at Paris, it will be made by the hard, detailed negotiations of the Foreign Ministers.

Here, then, is this great, ceremonial, time-consuming, effort-demanding Presidential journey. Here is this world-wandering version of the President's triumphant European tour last summer. What durable results can be expected of it?

The answer is provided by looking back to the European tour. That one produced no durable results of much importance in Europe. Nothing was decided in any of the capitals the President visited. The President's glowing presence naturally evoked an answering glow of friendship, but this was forgotten pretty soon after the cheering crowds dispersed.

The residue, in Europe, was very small indeed. But the European tour produced results that still endure in the United States.

In fact the tour was one of the two main episodes—the other was the Khrushchev visit here—which created the so-called "peace issue," and led to last summer's dramatic Republican recovery.

Its value has been registered by the pollster Dr. Gallup, whose poll results show Vice-President Richard M. Nixon rising from 39 per cent of the national vote in July to 53 per cent in November, with Sen. John F. Kennedy dropping from 61 per cent in July to 47 per cent in November.

With any luck at all, the new tour will consolidate and improve the effects of the emergence of the "peace issue" last summer. If this happens, moreover, there will be two consequences of high political importance.

The Republican party will benefit in general, and Vice-President Nixon will benefit in particular. The highly impressive Nixon rise in the polls that began last August abruptly upset the "Nixon-can't-win" strategy of the Vice-President's only Republican competitor, New York's Gov. Nelson Rockefeller. Another political harvest from this new presidential tour will assist Nixon even more.

This does not mean that the Vice-President had any hand in the new trip. He did not. It does not mean either that the President is taking this taxing trip with domestic political purposes foremost in his mind. He is a great believer in good will, even as a commodity in international trade.

Yet it does rather strain credulity to suppose that the President has altogether ignored the possible domestic political benefits of his foreign-political effort. He very much wants a successor who will carry on where he has left off, which means a Republican successor. There are clear signs, too, that he is unwilling to help the Vice-President become his successor, while doing nothing positive, of course, to block the rival candidacy of Gov. Rockefeller.

It will help the Vice-President materially, for instance, to appear in the role of Acting President in these next weeks. He will gain by presiding at Cabinet and Security Council meetings, as the President has invited him to do.

And if you suspect that this kind of quiet but useful help for Nixon is aimless and unintentional, you only need to look at the recently published list of the "New Yorkers for Nixon."

Not nearly enough attention has been given to the presence among the "New Yorkers for Nixon" of three of the President's closest cronies, W. Alton Jones of the City Service Oil Co., Barry T. Leithead of Cluett, Peabody and Co., and William E. Robinson of the Coca Cola Co. These members of the Augusta Golf Club set do exactly what the President wants in politics. It is hard to imagine their being mistaken about what he wants in the present instance. (C) 1959, New York Herald Tribune Inc.

FROM OTTAWA:

An International Scandal Reflecting Discredit on Many

By MAURICE WESTERN

IF the current budgetary papers of the United Nations Emergency Force mean what they appear to mean, a clear majority of member states are not prepared to pay their share in the world organization.

On Nov. 4, 1956, the Canadian resolution that led to the creation of UNEF passed the General Assembly with 19 abstentions but without a dissenting vote. It was subsequently agreed that the costs of the force would be borne by member states in proportion to their overall contribution to the United Nations.

But on June 30 of the present year no fewer than 43 states were in arrears—not merely on current assessments, but on their payments for 1957 and 1958. Many, including the nations of the Soviet bloc, have not paid a cent since United Nations soldiers sailed for the Middle East.

Smaller Assessments

The purpose of a Norwegian resolution, now before the Assembly and backed by Canada, is to reduce the assessments on the smaller and middle powers in the hope—not a very high hope—that this will induce them to honor their commitments. There will be renewed efforts to persuade the well-to-do nations to come forward with voluntary contributions. The total saved from the overall budget in this way would then be used to cut assessments by half, beginning with the lowest.

In the Red

This is an effort to stave off a crisis. As matters stand UNEF, with an annual budget of only $20,000,000, expects to be $12,000,000 in the red by the year-end.

It is, however, a very strange proceeding. In effect the United Nations is passing around a begging bowl. It is urging states which have demonstrated a sense of financial responsibility to contribute more in order that less may be charged to countries which have made no effort whatsoever.

If UNEF had failed to justify itself, the attitude of UN members would at least be understandable. But it has worked very well indeed. It halted the brief war which panicked Assembly states into unwonted unanimity in 1956 and it has kept the peace ever since despite a succession of alarms and revolutions in the Middle East.

Moreover, it has worked at minimal cost. The annual budget of about $20,000,000, borne (in theory) by 82 nations, is equal to about 1.3 per cent of Canadian spending on national defence which (again in theory) serves the same peace preserving purpose. This is certainly cheap insurance.

But three groups of states object to paying the premiums. In the case of the Soviet bloc the argument is that UNEF is illegal, a violation of the Charter, because it was created by the Assembly rather than by the Security Council.

Point of Law

But if the Communists feel so strongly on this point of law, it is strange that they compromised their principles in 1956 by abstaining instead of backing their convictions with their votes.

The Arab countries have never liked UNEF (although it saved Egypt from certain defeat in 1956) for the reason, among others, that it prevents them from halting the passage of Israeli ships through the Gulf of Aden.

Some of them would probably be happy enough to see it starved out of the Middle East. But Arab votes were cast for the 1956 resolution and Pakistan, usually the most eloquent champion of the Moslem-Arab cause, has conscientiously met her UNEF assessments.

The third group, including conspicuously a number of Latin American countries, argues simply that the great powers having a special political responsibility for peace should have a special financial responsibility as well.

But there is no obvious reason why this should apply with greater force to UNEF than to other UN assessments which they accept. And in fact the costs charged to them are very small—some annual assessments are as small as $30,000 a year. Even Chile, one of the leading states of the southern continent, is assessed only $72,500.

Cynical Theory

A popular, if somewhat cynical theory is that some nations deliberately parade their alleged poverty in this matter in order to buttress their case for greater economic assistance from the United States. Whatever the truth of this, the present financial plight of UNEF is an international scandal reflecting grave discredit on many countries.

A Proper Bastion

SILENUS

WHAT next? The Court House Seagull was beside himself when he read about the proposal to turn the precincts of the law courts into a sort of frozen museum of Olde Victoria.

"Cor!" he muttered "did you ever hear the like? Bow windows, yet! There never was a bow window in the neighborhood since I was an egg, and I've heard tell there wasn't one before that. Just a stockade and a few log shacks, before they put up this fine old Court House and its attendant taverns. Whose idea was that?"

"Sam Lane's. You know, the expatriate Canadian of Esquimalt."

"Awrrk! That's right. I saw him cruising around here the other day in his half-timbered Jaguar. Might have known. Waxworks! Hoo! What's the matter with what we have now?"

"They have waxworks in Barkerville, you know."

"Yes, and public works in Kelowna. So what?"

"I was just giving an illustration. Waxworks are all the rage; just now, however inappropriate. A group of them might look rather fine lounging round Lipsett's, or hoisting barrels at Heaney's. But I suppose they'd be picked up by the police sooner or later as vagrants."

"Serve 'em right. It's bad enough moving the Courts away. Judges and lawyers I can get along with. But do waxworks pass the time of day? Ha! What have they got except immobility? Target practice, that's all they're good for. Awrrrk!"

"What do you think of the municipal elections?"

"More loose talk about garbage. I'm agin' 'em."

"Well, how about the new Court House? Have you seen the plans?"

"Where do you think I've been for the last few weeks? Over at Public Works, that's where I've been. Have you ever seen the effect of feathers in a blueprint machine?"

"Can't say I have. Is it something like sand in the gears?"

"Something. I'm not giving up tamely, you know. I can't move up there with all those pigeons, and I can't stay down here with a bunch of waxworks. There's only one thing to do, and I'm doing it."

"What's that?"

"Stay down here with the status quo. Long may she reign!"

"But they're breaking ground next week. You'll find that you'll have to make your choice. Pigeons or waxworks."

"Nobody invited me to that ground-breaking. Hmph! However, now that you're reminding me of it, I think I'll show up anyway. A few sonic booms during construction will have a splendid effect on the ruddy thing as it goes up. By the way, did you hear me on Wednesday night?"

"Everybody did. The Mayor is very angry with you. I shouldn't be surprised if he went to Ottawa about it. And the chief constable has issued throwing nets to his men. You'd better fly low for a while."

"Awrrrk! They couldn't catch me. See you next week!"

And he sailed away, plotting mischief.

LABOR PARTY REFUSES SUPPORT

Africa Inquiry Boycotted

BY DAVE OANCIAC

Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Monckton commission of inquiry into Central Africa's political future suffered a serious blow when Britain's Labor party turned thumbs down on the Conservative government's approach to the colonial problem.

Labor decided Thursday night that no socialist will sit on the advisory commission headed by Viscount Monckton, a former Conservative minister, which is designed to pave the way for next fall's constitutional conference on the Central African federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland.

Many observers feel that Labor party action—which was not wholly unexpected—will almost certainly result in a boycott of the commission by politically-minded Africans and that any useful purpose it may once have had now is gone.

The government is faced with the difficult decision on how the membership of the 26-member commission is to be completed. Six members were to have been privy councillors three from the government side and three from the opposition.

Among the 19 non-parliamentary members are an Australian and a Canadian. Professor D. G. Creighton of Toronto. Liberal newspapers described both of these appointments as "unexciting." The Observer says the Commonwealth representatives "are noticeable primarily for their lack of knowledge about Africa."

REFUSED DEMANDS

Professor Creighton is an acknowledged authority on the history of Confederation and the development of a federal system of government, such as that of Canada.

Labor's rejection came when Prime Minister Macmillan refused to make any substantial concessions to meet socialist demands on three main points.

In a letter to the prime minister, Labor Leader Hugh Gaitskill listed these points as:

1. That parliamentary members should not be restricted to privy councillors.

2. That the government should try to obtain the confidence of African opinion by the release or trial of detainees in Nyasaland, particularly Dr. Hastings Banda, leader of the Nyasaland African National Congress party.

3. That the government would give a clear and unequivocal assurance that the commission would not be precluded from considering other forms of association as an alternative to federation of the two Rhodesias and Nyasaland.

Macmillan expressed disappointment about the Labor leader's stand.

BONNER ORDERS PROBE OF STORE 'CARD GAME'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Attorney-General Bonner said Friday night he has ordered an investigation of a "Bonus-Card Game" being operated by a B.C. food store chain as a buying incentive.

He said the investigation follows complaints from a consumers' group.

H. C. Boulton, secretary-manager of the Retail Merchants' Association, said he has received numerous calls since the scheme started two days ago asking that the association try to put a stop to it.

Neither Mr. Boulton nor the Attorney-General gave details of the scheme.

Reds Hits Dief's 'Waiting Policy'

'SENATE HANGOVER FROM PAST'

Premier Bennett said Friday the Canadian Senate is a hangover from the past and should be abolished.

"It should have been abolished years ago," he told a press conference.

"It is a hangover from the past. In my personal opinion it has outlived its real usefulness in the Canadian parliamentary system."

"The elected representatives should be responsible to the electorate and they cannot be if there is some other body with power over them."

LONDON (AP) — Moscow

Radio criticized Canada's Prime Minister Diefenbaker today for a recent speech in which he "hinted" that the West should await some concession from the Soviet Union.

In an English-language broadcast to North America, Moscow Radio said Diefenbaker was "a man who takes a realistic attitude." But regarding a recent speech he made in Ottawa to a meeting of Progressive Conservative women, the broadcast said:

"One cannot agree with Mr. Diefenbaker's contention — which is also that of some other Western spokesmen — that the further improvement in the international climate depends only on what position is taken by the Soviet Union."

"Mr. Diefenbaker hinted to his audience that the Western countries should now adopt a waiting policy."

"This is hardly a right attitude to take: Demanding one-sided concessions never has led and cannot lead to the attainment of decisions acceptable to both parties."

Austria Sets Up Fund For Victims of Nazis

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian

residents who suffered from Nazi persecution in Austria before and during the Second World War may be eligible for payments from a $6,000,000 fund being set up by the Austrian government.

The external affairs department, in the official Canada Gazette, said the fund will be established to settle claims of persons persecuted on political, racial or religious grounds between March 13, 1938, and May 8, 1945, by Nazi confiscation of bank accounts, securities, mortgages or money, or being forced to pay certain discriminatory taxes.

Austria planned to enact legislation to allow payment of claims for losses to those who did not file a claim within the time limit set previously.

Claims may be filed at the Austrian Embassy here or at consulates in Montreal, Calgary and Vancouver.

Energy Board to Open Meeting in Victoria

The first meeting of the B.C.

Energy Board will be held in Victoria, Dec. 15, Premier Bennett said Friday.

But he refused to answer reporters' questions concerning what will be done at the meeting. Big question is whether the board will have any jurisdiction over the pending granting of a water licence to Peace River Power Development Co.

The premier said he and some cabinet members would attend.

"I lay great stress on it, as it's an important meeting. But I won't be making any speeches. I never tell people what they should do, I'm only there to listen."

The board was created by the cabinet earlier this year under chairmanship of Dr. Gordon Shrum, UBC professor who conducted a royal commission enquiry into power matters last winter.

So far, the commission has had no meeting, and no terms of reference have been set.

The premier has just returned from 10 days at Los Angeles, Phoenix and Vancouver.

Brazil Rebels Scatter

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Brazil's President Juscelino Kubitschek has snuffed out the second revolt against his regime.

Army officers have been scattered since seizing five planes early Thursday. At least two officers fled to Argentina in a hijacked airliner and were given asylum. Several others were captured and the rest headed deep into the jungles of north-west Brazil.

"I consider the incident closed," Kubitschek said Friday night, declaring that "events like these never will be repeated in our country."

The midge revolt aroused no popular support, and even anti-government politicians and newspapers rallied around Kubitschek.

Several of the ringleaders were involved in a similar abortive revolt in 1936 which was crushed in 18 days. Kubitschek showed leniency and granted pardons to the officers then.

In the latest propaganda protest, the officers charged the Kubitschek government with being corrupt and Communist-tainted. They flew the stolen planes to the small jungle town of Aragarças, 1100 miles northwest of Rio, and south to rally support.

Government paratroops took over the town and its airstrip early Friday, shortly after the rebels pulled out.

One of the rebel leaders, Air Force Maj. Heber Telxera Pinto, fled to Buenos Aires in the airliner commandeered Wednesday while on a regular passenger run.

Kubitschek said his government will try to extradite the "air pirates" from Argentina.

A WRITER'S DIARY

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

WHO WAS IT that said—
There's no art

To find the mind's construction in the face.
It was King Duncan, in "Macbeth," a monarch of unusually bad judgment. He would never have dared to be so dogmatic if he had been acquainted with the art of Yousuf Karsh. It has been Karsh's delight, throughout a brilliant career, to find the mind's construction in the face and—this is the difficult part—to reveal it to the world.

If Karsh had lived in King Duncan's time (which was the 10th century) or in Shakespeare's (which was the sixteenth) he could have won a fame as a physiognomist—which is what a man was called who judged character and predicted destinies by the study of faces.

Some Unwelcome Conclusions

If a man's face was snouty, he was assumed to be pig-like. In the same way, faces were dog-like, therefore angry (it was before the time when people began to see noble things in dogs) and men with round noses were thought to be lion-like, and therefore noble (because Aristotle did not know much about lions, who look noble but behave quite contrarily).

Men with black, curly hair were judged to be quarrelsome boozers, whereas those with straight fair hair were thought to be feebly pious in character. I have an old book which discusses physiognomy at length, and if I took it seriously I would suppose that all my bald-crowned friends were fond of ghost stories, that people with flat foreheads were keen readers of newspapers, and that I myself (because I have grey eyes) must be a weak-minded drudge. I reject any system of prognostication which leads me to such unwelcome conclusions.

Splendor of Faces Revealed

Nor am I prepared to believe that moles with long hairs in them bring good luck and prosperity, or that people with pale skins are inordinately desirous of carnal pleasures.

Yet I am entranced by the variety of wonder of faces. A learned psychiatrist once said to me, "On the whole, the human face is remarkably plain." I refuse to believe it. So does Yousuf Karsh, and that is what makes his fine new book "Portraits of Great ness" (Univ. of Toronto Press) a treasure and a delight. The beauty and splendour of faces needs to be revealed, of course. The candid camera pictures which fill the news magazines have shown us how easy it is to make a philosopher look like a fool, or a great beauty like a rag doll. The real task for the photographer is to make them look like themselves—to show them as they are at their highest, most characteristic moment. That is what Karsh can do.

Many Means, Many Aspects

The means he uses are varied. Some of his pictures are filled with what theatre people call "props"—furniture, books, pictures, pens, papers and all the decorative appurtenances of daily life. His picture of Paul Claudel is eighteenth century in feeling; the savant, seen in profile, rests his hands on a couple of beautiful volumes.

Cecil B. de Mille (was Karsh being impish in this?) rests a typescript of his own upon a large Bible. Pope John is seen as a benevolent ruler; Pope Pius as a saint at prayer. Epstein looks uncommonly like an Epstein. Enesco is shown in a finely composed picture which makes it plain that this is a musician we see and not, as his face might suggest, a man of letters of the Voltairean stamp. But the finest pictures in the book are the big heads—Einstein, Augustus, John, Schweitzer, Jung, Sibelius, Marion Anderson and Vaughan Williams. Karsh shows the greatness and inner strength of these without external ornament.

Portraits Reveal Photographer

Karsh's art is revelatory, not only of the innermost character of his subjects, but of the photographer. He is a man who believes in individual greatness, reverences it, and wishes to serve it.

Great photographs are not taken with a cheap lens, or by a cheap man. It is also a psychological fact that no man can take a good picture of you if you regard him with indifference; you must feel something for the photographer—goodwill, admiration, curiosity, trust perhaps even detestation (Karsh lets it be known in his charmingly written comments on these pictures that he has had tussles of will with some of his famous subjects)—but you cannot be indifferent to him. To have established confidence in so many people of such diverse character that they were able to reveal themselves at their best speaks eloquently of the personal quality of Yousuf Karsh. This book, as well as being a handsome portfolio of great portraits, is taken as a whole, a wonderfully handsome portrait of the photographer, who has brought his whole spirit to every page.

This is a book on physiognomy which would have made Aristotle change his mind.

ART IN REVIEW

By MONCRIEFF WILLIAMSON

Rules Learned, Discarded By Absorbed Folk Painter

To see ourselves as others see us is an ability fortunately denied the primitive or folk painters. The lack of self-conscious self-analysis is what saves them from becoming "serious" painters in an amateur way.

I once heard a modern primitive or folk painter referred to as being a "bad amateur artist." If only it were possible to reverse the process and turn a bad amateur artist into a good folk painter! Purposeful seriousness kills so much art at birth.

Folk or primitive contemporary painting, however, can be achieved only by painters with an unselfish eye for fact, endlessly, patiently and even gamely colored. And such a wonderful world these good folk inhabit! So gay. So exactly real. So bright the colors freed from atmospheric disturbance, that we marvel at our own blindness.

Do you and I live in this same world? When we go about our chores do we see the same colors, the same facts as those seen by the Folk Painters of the Canadian West, whose exhibition is on view at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria (till Dec. 22).

The answer is yes, we do. The trouble is, something has happened to our eyes. We have lost the sharp clarity of childhood.

Studied, Listened

The big and ever-present question is what makes a folk painter? How does he manage it?

Le Douanier Rousseau studied the masterpieces in the Louvre month after month in order to perfect his art. He listened avidly to the conversations of his fellow artists and knew quite as much as many of them regarding the theories and practices of the Masters whom he so much admired.

Yet look at the result? Those highly imaginative, unspoiled creations which are organized beyond the capabilities of any child, and which invoke direct and excited communication and response. Paintings in which every lesson seems to have been forgotten in the very act of putting brush to canvas.

Personally I think that is the answer. The folk painter becomes so wholeheartedly absorbed in the very act of creating his 'picture' that everything else goes by the board. It is not so much a case of rules once learned are there to be broken, because every major artist has broken the rules if he has found the end to justify the means.

Confident, Free

But for the true folk painter, the rules, once learned, simply cease to exist. He just isn't frightened that he might fail to produce a desired effect. He knows that he can and will produce the effect.

Free of self-consciousness and worry, he can tackle anything. What makes the whole affair so delightfully charming is that the folk painter, by over-elaboration of detail and meticulous color shows us everything. Nothing is left out that should be there.

If there are a hundred cows in a field he shows us the hundred cows, legs, tails, spots and all. He shows us the clover and buttercups in the grass.

Joins In Fun

Full credit must be given to the National Gallery's Miss Norah McCullough who organized this charming exhibition for our pleasure. Even the catalogue, with its well-illustrated biographies of artists represented, joins in the fun, reversing one of the letters on the cover with folksy sophistication.

And in these biographies of men, none of them simple, we learn of the feelings of the true, untutored painters. Rules, when and if they exist at all, put us in our place.

"People have repeatedly asked," writes Roland Kevill, "How do you get such a vivid effect? No. 1: I never use anything but new paint each time I paint. No. 2: I always keep the brushes clean. No. 3: My oil and turps are always kept clear."

What could be simpler? The second exhibition at the Gallery is the sculpture and graphic by the young Vancouver sculptor, Bill Koochin, (till Dec. 22).

Angled Sculpture

I doubt whether Mr. Koochin's sculpture has been seen to better effect than in this tastefully organized display. These works could hardly have been arranged more nobly.

Mr. Koochin, who studied at Vancouver School of Art, and also in Toronto and Paris, is seen best in the steel-welded forms such as "Male Figure." This is not sculpture to be seen "in the round" but, rather, from one or two angles. There is a flavor of Marini, Reg Butler and Chadwick in some of the exhibits, but for all that Mr. Koochin is very much a sculptor in his own right, approaching self-discovery.

What I found disturbing was an almost two-dimensional feeling and lack of sculptural monumentality in much of the work, resulting in an insipid, decorative emptiness. However, in such works as "Group Composition" and "Figure," both loaned by Mr. and Mrs. L. Rief of Vancouver, Mr. Koochin emerges as a sculptor of major talent and technical accomplishment.

At present there is too much concentration of surface details of texture. But in his purely sculptural forms, such as "Running Horse" Mr. Koochin produces a highly satisfactory and pleasing sculpture, freed of calligraphic trifling.

Gems of Wit, Satire From Author Ustinov

Reviewed by A. F. Greenwood

ADD A DASH OF PITY, by Peter Ustinov, Little, Brown & Company (Canada) Ltd. $4.50.

"Where you heading, Mac?" asked the policeman at the wheel. Walking in Los Angeles is tantamount to loitering.

"I am going to a restaurant," answered Erhardt, who knew better than to be annoyed.

"Car broken down?" "I don't have a car."

"You don't have a car?" The policeman's face hardened and he braked. This certainly was suspicious.

"What's your name?" he rapped.

"Professor Erhardt Von Csumley."

"Engaged in atomic work?" "Music."

"Music? D'you know Perry Como?"

"No."

"You're a music professor and you don't know Perry Como?"

The policeman was more suspicious than ever.

The versatile Peter Ustinov, actor, playwright, director and TV personality, has in this, his first published volume of short stories produced a real gem.

Each story in Add a Dash of Pity calls forth just that.

Tales of what might have been—if, and a pity it wasn't.

A Hungarian, violinist rails against non-recognition and return to his servile fiddling. A major who should have been awarded the VC forgives his blundering General.

A poor, sheltered, timid soul is driven round the bend on being pushed into the harsh reality of a murder trial. A Spanish mayor accepts adversity with dignity and practicality.

Each tale is warm and human, and shows a kind understanding of the foibles of home sap.

The stories run the gamut of setting and content: Europe, North America, scientists, the military, musicians, the law, sportsmen, et al; a cosmopolitan and diversified grouping reflecting the author's own background.

Ustinov's wit is gentle and genuinely funny, and his satire, without malice, completely puckish, will raise many a chuckle.

The bull fight, in which everything goes wrong, is one of the most hilarious bits, to come up in a long time.

This book has something for everyone and is spanking good reading.

Books About Everything For Everybody's Gift List

By ROBERT R. METZ

NEA Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (NEA)—There are Christmas gift answers this year for the wife who can't afford a Ferrari for her sports car-loving husband, and the husband who can't buy a roomful of Louis XIV furniture for his antique-loving wife.

The answers are books—"The Book of Sports Cars" by Charles Lam Markmann and Mark Sherwin, and "The Complete Guide to Furniture Styles" by Louise Ade Boger. They're big, lavish and handsomely illustrated volumes that are part of a growing trend in book publishing toward the production of volumes particularly suited for holiday gift-giving.

GARDENERS TO PHILOSOPHERS

Chances are you'll be able to find selections to fit the interests of everyone from gardeners ("The Gardener's World" by Joseph Wood Krutch, "America's Garden Book" by James and Louise Bush-Brown) and Civil War buffs ("They Who Fought Here" by Bell Irvin Wiley and Hirst D. Milhollen) to advertising men ("They Laughed When I Sat Down" by Frank Rowsome Jr.) to philosophers ("Wisdom of the West" by Bertrand Russell).

Another major field is pictorial biography such as "The Life and Times of Theodore Roosevelt" by Stefan Lorant, "Victoria R" by Helmut and Alison Gernsheim, and "Churchill: The Walk With Destiny," compiled by H. Tatlock Miller and Loudon Sainthill. Among the costliest and most beautiful of the gift books are the Skira and Universe art volumes. New this year are "Greek Painting" by Martin C. Robertson and "Still

The first Christmas card was designed in 1843 by Sir Henry Cole, director of the Victoria and Albert Museum in London.

Life Painting" by Charles Sterling.

What distinguish these and similar books from the average volume of fiction, history or biography are their size (most run 8 1/2 by 11 inches), the heavy stock paper, the profusion of illustrations (some have as many as 400 to 500), the lavish use of color and the price. The books cost between $7.50 and $25.00.

Possibly the largest entry in the gift book field is "Observations" by Richard Avedon and Truman Capote which measures 10 1/2 inches by 14 1/2. "Observations" are camera and word portraits of great and famous personalities. Close behind it is "Africa" by Emil Schultness, 384 pages of fine photographs of a largely unknown land, which measures 10 by 12 1/2.

Of course, there is a risk involved in buying such books. Husbands who spend a year looking at pictures of Ferraris and wives who gaze upon Louis XIV furniture photos may decide that next year they must have the real thing.

friends

There are new footnotes to Canadian history in this intimate story of an enduring friendship between two great Canadians, and their influence on major national and international events of our times.

Seen in the light of the intimate friendship between Lord Beaverbrook, the dynamic newspaperman and British Cabinet Minister and Viscount Bennett, former Canadian Prime Minister, important events of our time, achieve a fascinating new perspective. Especially momentous is the revelation of Bennett's dream of a great cooperative trade relationship between the United Kingdom and Canada—and how his personal vanity caused its downfall. In the author's crisp style, an affectionate yet frankly critical portrait of Bennett is sketched with unusual perception. In the process, Beaverbrook gives some quite unexpected clues to his own character.

"Friends" is reading of assured significance and interest for every serious observer of Canada's political evolution. Excerpt from Toronto-Telegram-Review by John Bassett. "Friends" is recommended without hesitation for interest, for knowledge and for entertainment.

with Wayne

NEW YORK — Greetings from Darkest Manhattan. Your two foreign-correspondents are back for another visit with our favorite Uncle Ed.

As usual, we've been sitting around swapping stories in between-rehearsals with some of the most engaging raconteurs in showbusiness.

Here's one from Edie Adams who divides her time between being a comedienne and being Mrs. Ernie Kovacs.

This is the tale of a chimpanzee who appeared in one Tarzan movie and then, because the studio switched to other types of pictures, was donated to the local zoo.

The chimp was placed in a cage with another monkey who eyed him curiously and struck up a conversation.

"I was captured by hunters in Africa," said the monkey. "How did you get here?"

"Me?" shrugged the chimpanzee bitterly. "I had a lousy agent."

Professor Wayne, the distinguished mad scientist, is working at top speed to have his new invention ready for Christmas.

It's filter-tip cranberries.

Our Dallas correspondent claims he discovered the richest Texan ever. He spent $800,000 on a new yacht ... the old one got wet.

The first shot in the American presidential campaign was fired last week in New York City. While Sam, our favorite New York caddy, was driving us down Madison Avenue, he pointed out a newly-rented store with the banner ... Nixon for President. This, in the heart of the Rockefeller citadel.

Sam, like many Americans, has a pretty sardonic attitude towards politics and politicians.

"Christopher Columbus was the first politician," he said as he narrowly missed a pedestrian.

"Christopher Columbus?" we said.

"Sure. He didn't know where he was when he got there. And he did it all on borrowed money."

From the Wayne and Shuster collection of crazy signs comes the following discovered in an auto-repair shop:

May we have the next dents?

One of the brighter little intimate shows in New York these days is the very pleasant Billy Barnes Revue, a theatrical import from California.

We had our first laugh of the evening before even entering the theatre. The revue is currently housed in the Carnegie Playhouse, a small basement-theatre two flights below street level. As we were making our way down the dungeon-like staircase, one customer ahead of us turned to his companion and muttered ... "I've heard of off-Broadway shows but this is the first under-Broadway production I've ever attended."

A fellow we know was just fired for praying for a raise. His boss didn't like people going over his head.

Here's a wild one left over from the Grey Cup shambles that hit Toronto last week.

A policeman came across a Western fan, all battered and bruised, lying outside a downtown hotel clutching his crumpled stetson.

"Can you describe your assailant?" said the officer.

"Are you kidding, partner?" growled the Westerner.

"That's what I was doing when he hit me."

Only a portion of Handel's "Messiah" is concerned with the Nativity of Jesus Christ, but that portion is so richly beautiful that no Christmas season seems complete without a performance of the oratorio. On Wednesday next at 8 p.m., Victoria Choral Society will present it at Metropolitan United Church. Director is Stanley Hoban. At the organ will be Richard Proudman and a string ensemble will accompany, led by James Fraser. Leading Victoria singers will be soloists on this occasion. The tenor part will be sung by Michael Rogers; soprano, Ruth Champion; contralto, Eleanor Duff, and bass-baritone, John Dunbar, complete the panel of soloists.

This will mark the first occasion for some time that Victoria Choral Society has performed the "Messiah" with all local artists. Quality of the singers, plus the advantage of having all available at all times for rehearsal, should result in a particularly fine rendering of the well-loved work.

New Year to Bring Fine Fare To Theatre and Music Fans

Carol concerts and Christmas dramas have the city entertained scene to themselves for the next three or four weeks.

But after the post-Yule lull, in the winter-into-early-spring months, busy stages will see some of the most exciting events of many a season in Victoria.

On January 13, for instance, Sir Donald Wolfitt, one of the world's leading Shakespearean actors, and his wife, Rosalind Iden, will appear at the Royal Theatre under auspices of Famous Artists.

They will be seen in their internationally famous and popular program, "Scenes from Shakespeare." The Wolfitts play favorite scenes from such plays as "Hamlet," "Othello," "Richard III," "Henry V," "Twelfth Night," "Taming of the Shrew," and "Merry Wives of Windsor."

Scenes are done in costume. The pair will open a limited engagement North American tour in Vancouver and Victoria before embarking on a more extended tour of Australia.

In the following two or three months, Famous Artists will bring the Vienna Boys' Choir, the outstanding Israeli two-piano team of Eden and Tamir, the Festival Company of Norway and Britain's incomparable comedienne, Joyce Grenfell to the city.

Quite a feast for the wise and fortunate. A smart tip for Santa too. What theatre fan wouldn't like to find Wolfitt and Grenfell in their stockings? And what music lover wouldn't carol joyously over a gift of the Vienna Choir Boys alone?

(BB PLUS) "THE RABBIT TRAP" (Odeon)—In essence United Artists' "The Rabbit Trap" is an excellent play as it explores the thesis that a man's soul is his own and he must direct it as he sees right, which is usually much more difficult in practice than in theory.

Unfortunately for J. P. Miller's screenplay, however, the odd situation arises and these, plus some unnecessarily cornball-dialogue, tend to detract from the overall vehicle. This is a pity for acting by Ernest Borgnine, Bethel Leslie, who plays his wife, Kevin Corcoran, his eight-year-old son, and David Brian who appears as Borgnine's hard-driving boss mostly make the best of the material at hand.

The plot, in brief: Borgnine, as old Steady-Edie, is in the country enjoying the first day of one of the few holidays he has ever taken during his 10-year-old job with Brian's construction company. He has just shown the lad how to set a rabbit trap but when they return to their cottage it is to receive word that he is needed by Brian back in the city. When she learns that he will give up their holiday without a fight Borgnine's wife breaks down and tells him that as far as she is concerned their dreams together died with the birth of their son, that nothing has progressed for them since.

BUT IT ISN'T this that stirs Borgnine. When they return to Los Angeles he discovers his boy very upset by the fact that they have left the rabbit trap set. If it catches one won't it die of starvation? What to do? Remain by his hard-won job or return in the name of humanity?

One facet that detracts from the play is the world in which we live. It seemed just too much to be asked to believe Borgnine's predicament with his boss and his firm in light of today's five-day weeks, three weeks' vacation with pay and retirement at 60.

Second half of the Odeon bill is "Day of the Outlaw," starring Robert Ryan, Burl Ives, Tina Louise and David Nelson.

Antique Instruments To Accompany Carols

Candles, holly, and a happy atmosphere of good fellowship mellowed by the performance of fine old carols will make Victoria Musical Art Society's annual Carol Tea one of the brightest Yuletide memories this season for those who plan to attend.

Reservations for the tea, which will be held at Holyrood House next Saturday, Dec. 12 at 3 p.m., must be made before Dec. 10, by phoning Miss Mary Adamson, EV 4-2182.

Carols will be sung by Musical Art Madrigal Singers, directed by Margery Vaughan and accompanied by Joan, Joanna and Debbie van der Goes on the recorders and Ray Bucket at the virginals.

Among the several groups of carols will be "Unto Us a Boy is Born", The Coventry Carol, "Holly and the Ivy", "Greensleeves", "Bring a Torch, Jeanette, Isabella", the Huron Carol and the Wassail Song.

The accompanying instruments are uniquely suited to the music, the recorders being an ancient type of flute and the virginals an early keyboard instrument with a plucked string mechanism giving forth a delicate tinkling tone.

Predictions For Next Year Optimistic

NEW YORK (AP)—Optimistic predictions for 1960 tumbled out of the United States business world this week, and developments showed that 1959 is a great business year except for those hurt by the steel strike.

This is what some authoritative sources expect in 1960:

1. A record steel production of 127,000,000 to 130,000,000 tons.
2. The automobile industry will try to build more cars—an estimated 2,240,800—in the first three months than in any previous quarter.
3. Food sales will reach an all-time high of $76,000,000,000.
4. New construction will hit a record $55,300,000,000.

BUSY OCTOBER

These developments added to the 1959 picture:

1. Machine tool orders in October totalled $67,130,000, highest since March, 1957.
2. Instalment buying reached a peak of $38,421,000,000 at the end of October.
3. Sales of the domestic electronics industry are expected to total $9,000,000,000 this year, up $1,000,000,000 from 1958.
4. Construction contracting totalled $1,458,000,000 in November, highest ever for that month.

Business affected by the steel strike, and the steel industry itself, continued this week to snap back as tension mounted over outlook for a settlement.

Steel production climbed to an estimated 92 per cent of capacity with the mills rushing to meet a great backlog of orders.

RESUME PRODUCTION

Car production was stepped up after a long decline due to steel shortage. The industry hoped this was the last week of curtailed output. General Motors recalled 115,000 of 215,000 workers laid off because of the strike and will resume production Monday.

Retail trade scored a slight gain this week over a year ago. The dollar volume was up to four per cent higher than last year.

The agriculture department reported that a drop of five per cent in prices of meat animals in November helped push farm markets to their lowest point since March, 1957. Prices also were lower for cotton and oranges. The declines were offset partially by somewhat higher prices for dairy products, potatoes, wheat, turkeys and soybeans.

Ontario Fears Hike In Gas Price

TORONTO (CP)—Export of natural gas to the United States will boost the price of gas in Ontario unless something is done about it now, R. B. Craddock, vice-president of the Northern Ontario Natural Gas Company, said Friday.

Mr. Craddock said in an interview with the U.S. will increase the demand for Canadian gas and this in turn will raise the wellhead prices in Alberta. This could eventually lead to an increase in price for Ontario consumers.

Mr. Craddock said his company intends to intervene in the application by four pipeline companies for permission to export gas to the U.S. The application is to be heard by the national energy board in Ottawa early next month.

A. R. Crozier, chairman of the Ontario fuel board, said Mr. Craddock's reasoning was correct but there was another side to the question.

"It is true that export of Alberta gas to the U.S. could lead to a raise in wellhead prices," he said, "but it could also lead to a decrease in transmission prices."

Typos' Union Absolved In Anti-Trust Suit

SEATTLE (AP)—The International Typographical Union and other defendants were absolved Friday in a $6,625,471 newspaper anti-trust suit.

Judge W. D. Murray of Butte, Mont., found in favor of the union in a 30-page decision filed in Federal District Court.

The action involved charges by the owners of the Tri-City Herald of Kennewick, Wash., that the ITU, the Columbia Basin News of Pasco and others conspired to drive the Herald out of business after it was struck by the ITU in 1950.

MARKETS IN REVIEW

Rambling Industrials Hike Prices, Trading Light

By GREG MACDONALD

Canadian stock markets this week, pushed by a rambling industrial index, went higher amid some of the lightest trading in weeks.

Some brokers attributed the upward trend to early Christmas buying, but the trading pace still moved at a much slower than usual rate.

The average volume for the week was less than 2,000,000 shares and brokers say they can think of a variety of reasons why.

One, of course, is a lack of interest and little in the way of business news. Another is tax selling from the United States which is blamed by many for the noticeable drop in oil stocks.

ELECTION INFLUENCE

The others include the present tight money policy and the U.S. presidential elections which, although still a year away, already has begun to cast a definite shadow over the market.

Industrials, picking up the cue from the Wall Street market, jumped more than 4% points on index this week for one of its best weeks in recent months. However, it wasn't until mid-week when they began their advance and it didn't become noticeable until early Friday.

Utilities led the industrial stocks with gains outnumbering losses more than two to one. Steels, oil refineries, constructions and manufacturing all had gains but losses were close behind.

MINES ACTIVE

Mines had a relatively good week, especially International Nickel, which gained $2.50 at $101.75, a record high. Other nickel companies also enjoyed

TRAFFIC NOT HEAVY ENOUGH

Four-Lane Highway To Sidney Rejected

A plea by Victoria district auto court and resort owners for an "adequate road" between Victoria and Sidney fell by the wayside Friday.

A highways department spokesman said traffic will have to be nearly double before a four-lane highway is built.

Present use indicates the Island Highway out of the city will become four lanes before the Victoria-Sidney road is widened.

Traffic counts show the average daily vehicle count on the Island Highway at Harriet is 8,890 vehicles. At Heilicken on the Island Highway the count was 9,275 a day.

On the Pat Bay Highway studies show 7,200 vehicles passed at Royal Oak and 5,700 at Sayward Road.

The department uses a working figure of 14,000 vehicles per day as the maximum tolerable usage before a four-lane highway is built.

A spokesman said the 14,000 figure applies to weekday traffic. Even if 14,000 vehicles used the highway on Sundays it would not mean that four lanes were required.

The spokesman added that the Loughheed Highway in Vancouver had a daily average usage of 18,000 vehicles before it was converted to four lanes.

Auto court owners claim the new government ferry service scheduled to begin early next year will see a sharp increase in vehicle traffic on the Pat Bay Highway.

Resort operators say the government estimates the ferry service will carry up to 300,000 passengers and 111,000 vehicles per year. There would be 70,000 autos, 40,000 trucks.

But the highways department argues that even if the ferries operate at capacity with each vehicle using the Pat Bay Highway, the extra traffic won't amount to more than 1,000 vehicles per day.

CNR to Introduce New Containers For Freight Loads

MONTREAL — New collapsible lightweight aluminum alloy containers for carrying freight shipments will be introduced by the Canadian National Railway and the Traccon leasing division of Thornley Engineering Co. Ltd. of Toronto commencing Jan. 1.

The containers will be leased by Traccon directly to private industries and transported by CNR on an experimental basis. Initially, there will be two sizes introduced in this service, 9 cu. ft. and 16½ cu. ft. While they are of rugged construction, they only weigh 35 and 62 pounds, respectively, and have a carrying capacity of 33 pounds, yet collapse to one-fifth of their normal size for transporting when empty.

EVERY VOTE IN SUPPORT OF FLUORIDATION IS A VOTE TO PROVIDE LASTING BENEFIT TO THE CHILDREN OF GREATER VICTORIA

Greater Victoria's Water Supply is Unfortunately Deficient In Fluorine and the Proposal which Requires your Endorsement At the Polls is Simply to Correct this Deficiency by Fluoridating Our Water to the Extent of One part per Million.

WHAT ARE THE BENEFITS OF FLUORIDATION?

Exhaustive research has proven that the tooth enamel of children living in areas that have either natural or added fluorine in the water supply is much more resistant to decay than in fluoride-deficient areas such as Victoria. As conclusively proven in surveys (notable among which is the Brantford, Ontario, Fluoridation report issued by the Department of National Health and Welfare, Ottawa), the incidence of dental decay is reduced by 68% by fluoridation.

IS IT COSTLY?

In cities that now have fluoridation in effect, the cost runs between six and fifteen cents per person per year although it has been estimated that Victoria's cost, at the outside, may reach twenty-five cents per year—all negligible figures compared to the cost of dental repairs.

LET US NOT DEPRIVE OUR CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN OF THE BENEFITS OF DENTAL HEALTH

because of the familiar resistance of people whose counterparts once opposed vaccination, pasteurization and chlorination. The leaders of this opposition group are endeavoring to portray a divided opinion among Doctors and Dentists on this matter. Such is clearly false. Water fluoridation has been endorsed unreservedly as a Public Health Measure that will reduce dental decay without any harmful effect whatsoever by:

The Canadian Medical Association
The Canadian Dental Association
The Canadian Public Health Association
The Health League of Canada

The National Research Council, U.S.A.
The American Medical Association
The American Dental Association
The United States Public Health Service

BUT ABOVE ALL

FLUORIDATION IS ENDORSED AND RECOMMENDED BY YOUR OWN DOCTOR AND YOUR OWN DENTIST HERE IN VICTORIA WHOSE NAME APPEARS BELOW

Here are the men whose skill and advice we seek in times of need and whose judgment we accept in matters concerning the health of our families:

GOLF HARMLESS SPORT? DON'T YOU BELIEVE IT

TORONTO (UPI)—The apparently harmless sport of golf may be more dangerous than it looks. The metropolitan parks committee was requested that the metro council compel all golfers in the city to take out $25,000 public liability and property damage insurance.

Metro parks commissioner Thompson said the move had been taken since an inordinate amount of home windows and automobile windshields had been smashed by golf balls.

Code Numbers Helped Fullmer Plan Strategy

LOGAN, Utah (CP) — Gene Fullmer, a broad-shouldered boxer who preaches religion when he isn't belting somebody around the ring, retained his National Boxing Association world middleweight crown Friday night with a 15-round decision over Spider Webb.

GENE FULLMER

It may not have been a sensational battle but it gave the Mormon Sunday School teacher some bargaining power for future fights.

Fullmer has been noted for his bull-like rushes and desire to overpower his opponents. He pulled a switch Friday night. He had strategy.

During the scrap he reacted to code numbers called off by manager Mary Jensen. He fought out of an arms-crossed defence, led with a smashing right to the body or tried the more orthodox left-hand lead.

MOORE NEXT?

Fullmer contemplates stepping up a rung to challenge venerable light-heavyweight king Archie Moore. Or he might clear the 160-pound picture by fighting Sugar Ray Robinson again if Robinson has any desire for such a bout.

The 157½-pound Webb, from Chicago and a former student at Idaho State College, made the champion appear awkward at times. But Fullmer made up for his awkwardness with solid high-hand belts to the body and also blocked many of the challenger's best shots. Fullmer weighed 159½ pounds.

The three officials, all from Utah, scored under the 10-point must system and all had Fullmer far ahead.

COME OUT HEALTHY

Despite the battering through 15 rounds, neither fighter appeared badly marked at the end and not until the final round did the Negro challenger appear to tire. By that time, Fullmer's smashes to both body and head were taking their toll.

Fullmer said Webb "acted like he thought he had the title and waited for me to take it away. But I figure if you've got the title it's the other guy's job to get it."

In Webb's gloomy dressing room, the challenger said: "I felt I won that fight."

Spider said he would like to take another crack at Fullmer but Jensen remarked: "Webb? Who's Webb?"

Fullmer, receiving 40 per cent of the approximate $86,000 gate and $100,000 television money, will collect about $70,000. Webb will get $35,000, along with his blasted dreams.

What does Fullmer plan for the future? "I gotta skin me some mink," he said. He owns a mink ranch. But it won't be too long before he's trying to skin another boxer.

Will Agase Last Two-Year Pact?

TORONTO (CP) — Lou Agase, whose shoulders appear broad enough to bear the burden, was signed Friday as head coach of Toronto Argonauts.

The 35-year-old line coach of Michigan State University took on a two-year pact to lead the floundering football club out of the depths of the Big Four. He is the fourth man in six years to tackle the job.

The extent of the rebuilding job facing Agase may be seen in the Argos' record over that period. They were third in 1954 and 1955 and entrenched in the basement the last four years with an identical number of wins—four in 14 games.

Managing director Lew Hayman said he and Agase, who is taking on his first head coaching position, agreed two years was long enough to show whether Agase could produce a winner.

Agase will get down to business today with Hayman and, among other things, will discuss his two assistants. He wants one of these to have at least some experience in Canadian football.

Steve Owen, line coach who took over the top job when Hamp Pool was dropped in mid-season this year, will remain in the Argos organization in a capacity to be decided later.

Agase saw his first Canadian play last Saturday when he was the Argos' guest at the Grey Cup game.

Mel's Back Again, And in Two Finals

It will be Mel Chapman against Bob Hunt for the men's single final tonight in the Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club's annual shuttle tournament.

Chapman, a former city junior star who recently returned from residence in Vancouver, looked better than ever at the Amphion Street courts Friday night when he shuttled defending champion Harvey Hurd to the sidelines.

Mel carved out his triumph in straight games, tripping Hurd, 15-7, 15-12.

Chapman also upset the dope sheet in the men's doubles semifinals, teaming with Reg Hoadley to squeeze past Hurd and Len Tolson, 10-15, 15-10, 15-7.

Hunt made it into two finals with a 15-6, 15-7 conquest of Mel MacKenzie and partnering Ed Hedy for a straight-game win over MacKenzie and Jim Wells.

Maureen Bray and Judy Humber advanced into the women's singles final. Miss Bray ousted Wendy Cox and Miss Humber bested Jean Massey in the semifinal round.

Friday's results and tonight's schedule:
Men's singles—Hunt defeated Mel MacKenzie 15-6, 15-7; Chapman defeated Hurd 15-7, 15-12. Ladies' singles—Bray defeated Wendy Cox 11-4, 11-3; Humber defeated Jean Massey 12-10, 11-4.
Men's doubles—Ed Hedy and Hunt defeated Jim Wells and MacKenzie 15-7, 15-4; Chapman and Reg Hoadley defeated Hurd and Len Tolson 15-5, 15-10, 15-7.
Ladies' doubles—Bray and Rennie Walls defeated Bev Anderson and Humber 10-15, 15-4, 15-12; Claire King and Edie Cooley defeated Diana Parsons and Jane Lee 15-7, 15-11. Mixed doubles—Hurd and King defeated Bob and Marlene Hunt 10-15, 15-10, 15-12. Hedy and Lee defeated Hoadley and Cooley 15-4, 15-13, 15-7.

Cats Might Find Comets Still Hot

Tempers Boil at Seattle; Totems Even With Cougars

Victoria Cougars may have a pack of hot Comets on their hands when they continue their Western Hockey League road trip at Spokane tonight.

At least the Comets were boiling at Seattle Friday night and the fact that the Totems pushed the Spokane crew a little deeper in the league cellar shouldn't help the Comet dispositions.

Comets, who lost a 5-2 verdict to the Cougars on home ice Wednesday, took a 6-2 thumping from the Totems and were involved in a torrid melee in the final period.

The trouble centred around the penalty box and was ended only when referee Scotty Morrison threatened to deal out a wholesale batch of misconduct penalties.

FAN GRABBED STICK
The festivities started when a fan grabbed Bill Burega's stick as the Spokane player sat out a penalty. Burega and the fan started a tug of war and quickly players from both teams were milling around. But tempers cooled when Scotty issued his threat.

Vancouver Canucks, appearing to pick up steam as they move east on a prairie trip, padded their league lead to 11 points as they walloped Winnipeg Warriors 6-0.

In Friday's other game, Calgary Stampede closed to within two points of fourth-place Edmonton by trimming the Flyers 4-2.

Bill MacFarland, the loop's leading scorer, fired three goals and ran his season's total to 18 as the Totems climbed into a second-place tie with the Cougars.

The Seattle team was in the lead throughout — 3-1 at the end of the first and 4-2 after the second. The other Totem scorers were Tommy McVie, Marc Baileau and Gerry Leonard while the Spokane goals were contributed by Ron Atwell and Bev Bell.

Goaltender Hank Bassen recorded his third shutout of the season as Vancouver Canucks beat the Warriors before about 3,000 fans.

SOLID DEFENCE
Bassen stopped 25 shots from the inept Warriors while his mates poured 49 shots at Al Rollins of the Warriors, who had little protection.

Canucks were in command throughout as they provided a solid defence for Bassen, and showed good passing by all three forward lines.

Vancouver goals were scored by Ed Dorohoy, Bruce Carmichael, Grant McNab, Orland Kurtenbach, Ron Hutchinson and Les Colwill.

Only two penalties were handed out in the first two periods, but tempers flared in the rugged last session. Kurtenbach and Winnipeg defenceman Ted Green drew majors for a lively centre-line fight in which the Vancouver player easily won the decision as the referee stood aside and let them wrestle to the ice.

Calgary took a 4-0 lead in the Edmonton encounter before Flyers managed to ruin the shutout hopes of Claude Pronovost. Jackie McLeod and Ron Leopold gave the visitors a 2-0 lead in the second and Sid Finney and Gord Veprave rounded out the Stampede's scoring in the third. The late Edmonton comeback was by Ed Diachuk and Gord Labossiere.

It's a Struggle In Test Cricket
KARACHI, Pakistan (Reuters)—Pakistan, beaten in the first two cricket test matches, had to struggle for 157 for four wickets against Australia on the opening day Friday of the third and final test.

Hanif Mohammad (51) and Saeed Ahmad (72 not out) defied the Australian attack for nearly 3½ hours in a second-wicket stand of 88.

Soccer Switch
Poor condition of the pitch at Central Park has resulted in the shifting of one of Sunday's four Victoria and District Football League matches.

Heaneys and Canadian Scottish, originally slated to clash at Central, will settle their differences at Beacon Hill. Game time is 2 p.m.

Ace Sniper Of Sailors Suspended

Navy, which missed the sniping talents of Neil Standley while absorbing its first loss of the Commercial Hockey League season last Monday, will have to get along without the high-scoring forward for at least two more games.

The Sailors, who dropped a 6-5 decision to Patterson Construction, will tackle Vics in the second game of Monday's twin bill at Memorial Arena with Standley still on the sidelines.

Standley is under indefinite suspension by the B.C. Amateur Hockey Association for his part in an incident during an exhibition game at Powell River, Nov. 19.

MIFFED SCULLERS FORM OWN CREW ...

Cinderella Story in the Making at UBC?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Gordon Green was a student at St. Edward's School, Oxford, several times home of the British schoolboy rowing champion.

Charles Lankester attended Sherborne school in Dorsetshire, and was an active athlete, but not in rowing.

Graham Leslie graduated from Oxford University, a Rhodes scholar, captain of his rugby squad and an outstanding boxer, but never an oarsman.

Osrie Armstrong rowed just for fun while attending Eton. Today, these rugged young Britons are studying at the University of British Columbia — and in every spare hour striving for perfection as a rowing four.

Green, Lankester, Leslie and Armstrong intend to compete as a rowing four in the 1960 summer Olympic games in Rome next August — not for Canada, but for England.

"We think the North American training methods are superior to those of the British," Green said, "and we intend to go home and beat the British at their own game."

The possibility is not far-fetched. In the 1956 Olympics, the UBC fours won a gold medal and the UBC eights a silver medal. England finished out of the top four.

For the four students, the story is one of hard work, intensive training and financial struggle.

They must be fit and able to defeat their countrymen in the British rowing trials, expected next June. And they must raise $10,000 to purchase a racing shell, pay their way to England for the trials and to pay the costs of remaining there from June until the games in August if their plan is successful.

They already have committed themselves to a $2,000 outlay for a shell and other equipment.

Their plan grew from a great disappointment suffered by Green last summer and from an association Leslie had with a former UBC oarsman, Walter d'Hondt, who rowed with UBC fours in the 1956 Olympics.

Green had earned a seat in the UBC shell that represented Canada in last summer's Pan-American Games in Chicago, but he learned he could not compete because he does not hold Canadian citizenship papers. Worse still, he said, he learned he would not be eligible to represent Canada in the 1960 Olympics.

Just about then Leslie came to study at UBC and stayed at the home of d'Hondt's parents. Through Walter, he became interested in rowing.

"One day Walter, in an off-hand comment, said 'Why don't you get your own British four and try to represent England at the Olympics?'" Leslie recalled. "We got together and decided to try it."

They found a practice shell at the Vancouver Rowing Club. It was 30 years old and they had to rebuild it.

In mid-September they began training under Green's guidance. Several weeks later they coaxed Dave Helliwell, former UBC rower and last year UBC coach, into working with them.

Daily at 5:30 a.m., they rowed 10 to 20 miles on the choppy, debris-filled waters of Vancouver Harbor.

When darkness prevented working at that early hour, they concentrated on weekends, keeping fit with other activities during the week. In spring they'll be back at the 5:30 a.m. grind.

All four are taking stiff courses at UBC, Leslie and Armstrong in civil engineering, Green and Lankester in forestry.

Green and Leslie are from London, Armstrong from County Armagh in Northern Ireland, and Lankester from Oxford, Surrey.

"It's too early to tell for sure," Helliwell said, "but I think they'll do all right."

And if we do, Green said, "we might meet the UBC fours from Canada in the Olympic final. Imagine two UBC crews in the Olympic finals?"

Now wouldn't that be something.

Too Many Kicks

LONDON (CP) — In Canada the old-timers complain that they've taken the foot out of football. In British rugby, they're beginning to wonder if they aren't seeing too much of it.

A case in point occurred in Cardiff, when Newport protected an unbeaten record by beating the home side 12-8 with all their scoring coming from four penalty goals by Norman Morgan. Cardiff's points, came from a penalty goal and a converted try. There was no denying the merits of Morgan's feat.

His longest shot travelled 65 yards. Another 50-yarder was kicked from a spot just inside the touch line. But it happened on an afternoon when his foot appeared to be the only offensive weapon in Newport's locker.

The question, which is being asked with increasing frequency, involves the wisdom of awarding three points for a penalty goal, often the result of a trifling infraction of the rules, when the same reward comes from crossing the opposing goal line.

DULL TREND

The game's critics argue that rugby is becoming an increasingly dull, defensive game, particularly at the international level, with teams content to kick for the touch lines and a wait for the windfall of a penalty call within range of their goal-kicker's capabilities.

At Twickenham, rugby's hallowed headquarters, there hasn't been a try in an international match in three years.

The suggested remedies follow two lines — reduction of the number of offences punishable by the award of a penalty kick and a change in the scoring setup to emphasize the value of a touchdown.

The most popular suggestion for revision of the point-scoring regulations is a step in the direction of North American football, increasing the try from three points to four and reducing the convert from two to one. The alternative would be to drop the penalty goal in value from three points to two.

The problem of changing the rules on penalty awards is more complex. Rugby is a game with few written regulations and a great deal of discretion resting with the individual referee. Many officials already make a practice of calling penalties for minor offences only when the ball is well out of range of the goal posts.

FEAR-RELAXATION

Rugger experts say a strict official could call a penalty for offside or illegal bodily contact almost every time two players collide. But defenders of the present rules argue that any relaxation of the penalty rule could easily lead to abuses and excessive rough play.

The case for reform is put succinctly by Wilfred Woolfer, a former Welsh international and, incidentally, a goal-kicking specialist, who now writes a column for The News Chronicle.

"Legislators should be moulding the hands, not the feet of the growing child," he says.

"Rugby began as a great contest of brain and muscle when players learned to run and pass and one does not want to see it slide backwards into a defensive stalemate dominated by giant kickers."

"Darn these hero-worshippers who have to get a souvenir of their idol!"

Consistent Cy Holds Top Spot

By MICHAEL ROSE

There's a cosy little clan sitting on top of the major fivepin-league list at Capital City Bowladrome and its members don't appear ready to abdicate their places in a hurry.

King of the court is Cy Wallis, one of the city's most consistent top-notchers, who is rolling along with a 257 average over 30 games.

Following Cy by 20 or more points are Stan Bell Jr., who has a 237 mark, good for a one-point lead over his father, and right on the Bell heels, May Wallis, owner of a 234 average.

With the exception of Wal-

Throughout the city, fivepin scores generally were not up to the previous two weeks' level, but an obvious standout was the very fine 971 rolled by Reg Waggoner in the championship series at Capital.

Reg started the three with a mediocre 282, then had Victoria has failed, so far, to produce an officially-recorded tenpin triple over 700, although Jack Howell bowled a 708 in 1933 and John Dunick turned in 772 in 1937.

Howell's score was not recorded officially and there is no indication that it was bowled in regular league play.

Dunick, too, lost out since

High scores came a little easier to tenpin bowlers over the week and no less than six trundlers cracked the 600 mark.

Sheldon Nipp was murdering the maples this week and came in with a pair of over-600 efforts. Sheldon blasted out a 654 for high-three honors in Gibson's senior circuit and rolled a 636 for Bel Air Cabinet to help his team set a new league record at the alleys.

Bel Air racked up 2,902 to shatter the former mark of 2,863, set by Totem Grill in April of last year.

Other Bel Air boys going over 600 at Strathcona were

Three to Rule Soccer Activities

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Pacific Coast Soccer League decided Friday night to set up a three-man directorate with complete control over its affairs.

At a meeting Friday night, the league named Bill Coleman as the new president and Charlie Alcock and Bill Findler as directors.

Coleman, who formerly was general manager, promised rapid and sweeping moves to put the league back on its feet.

Belmont Lads Stay With Hoop Leaders

Belmont, which kicked over the apple cart in the Inter-High School Senior Boys' Basketball League earlier this week, is still running neck-and-neck with Oak Bay and Vic High.

Upset conquerors of Vic High's Totems Tuesday, Belmont stayed in a three-way deadlock for first place with the Bays and Totems Friday night by clipping St. Louis College 43-35.

The Belmont lads earned their victory the hard way, coming from behind after trailing by a 21-16 count in the opening game of a twin-bill at Esquimalt.

Bill Spotswood fired the best shots for Belmont in what was probably the best of the four league games played Friday night. Lanky Bill heaved 28 points through the hoop.

DOCKERS MOVE UP

In the second tussle at Esquimalt, the Dockers moved into fourth place by waltzing to a 44-24 win over Royal Oak as Bruce Mitchell collected 20 points for the host club.

Oak Bay and Vic High chalked up victories in the double-header played at Mount View.

The Bays, rattling in 14 points in the third quarter, carved out a 30-20 triumph to stretch their unbeaten skein to four games. Totems and Belmont have also won four games, but they have each suffered one defeat.

TEN FOR TURNER

Maury Turner fired 10 points to set the scoring pace for Oak Bay, which held a slim 11-10 lead at half-time. Terry Johnson topped Mount View with nine points.

Totems used their fast break most of the way to run away for a 47-17 victory over Milne's Landing in the opening tussle. Mike Gallo, Neil Holborn and Bill Hobbs each counted eight points for Vic High.

Hot Vernon Club Ready for Reds

By The Canadian Press

Shouts of "Bring on the Russians" rang through the home arena of Vernon Canadians Friday night, as the team walloped Kelowna Packers 9-0 in a devastating display of power.

The victory virtually assured Canadians of becoming the Okanagan Senior Hockey League team to meet the touring Russian team.

The Russians play in Kelowna and in Trail Jan. 25 and 27.

The OSHL leader, as of Dec. 12, will meet the Russian team.

In the night's other Okanagan game, Pentiction V's, who have dropped dismally since their 1955 victory over the Russians in the world championship—lost 7-5 to Kamloops Chiefs in a wild game at Pentiction.

In the Western International League, Trail Smoke Eaters and second-place Nelson Maple Leafs battled to a 4-4 overtime tie.

Canadians seemed to do no wrong in Vernon as rookie goalie Jim McLeod scored his second shutout.

Sherm Blair, Bill Swarbrick, Walt Trentini and Willie Schmidt each scored twice, while Tom Stecky picked up a single.

The Chiefs V's game was marked by a fight in the second period which left both teams to play the rest of the

The total mutual handle for both tracks was more than $58,000,000 and total attendance close to 1,200,000.

Richelieu reported total mutual of $29,324,178 compared with approximately $25,000,000 in 1958, and attendance of 641,568, an increase of about 100,000 compared with last year.

INLET ANGLERS CHASING SALMON-OF-THE-MONTH

Some of the anglers who have been reaping an excellent harvest of grilse at Saanich Inlet in recent weeks may be using larger lures today.

Members of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association started their second winter series of monthly fishing competitions today.

A trophy, donated by some of Victoria's sporting goods stores, will go each month to the angler weighing-in the largest spring salmon.

Only qualification needed to compete in the contest is a VSIAA membership. Regular association rules will apply and fish may be entered at any authorized weigh-in station at the Inlet.

Further information may be obtained from Vic Humphries at EV 4-0406.

Curling Favorites In Fast Getaway

The favorites are getting a good jump out of the starting gate in the long run for provincial curling honors.

Three rinks regarded as good bets to reach the Vancouver Island finals are showing records in the Victoria Curling Club's round-robin Consols playdowns.

Tony Gutoski, 1937 provincial champion, Steve Hayhurst and Gar Taylor each picked up their second victories Friday night.

Four of the 10 rinks competing will advance to the Island's southern playdowns. From there, three rinks move into the Island finals at Alberni against the three northern representatives. The zone champion gets a berth in the provincial finals.

Gutoski ran into an unexpected amount of trouble against lightly regarded Bob McIntosh but triumphed 8-6 Friday. Hayhurst, former Saskatchewan finalist, defeated Gerry Walls, 15-6 and Taylor beat Larry Marshall's rink 12-9.

In other games Thursday, Wes Young's Navy rink thumped Jack Craig 11-3. Entries skipped by Jim Dickson and Gordie Moore were idle.

OTTAWA (UPI) — Doctors have urged hockey players to use helmets.

Drs. J. S. Campbell, Pierre Fournier and D. P. Hill of the University of Ottawa and Ottawa General Hospital say blows by hockey pucks can provoke aneurysm to an artery lying near the surface of the skin on the forehead or side of the head.

Writing in the December issue of the Canadian Medical Association, the doctors termed injuries suffered by fast-flying pucks "a potentially serious hazard" in hockey.

A suitably-designed protective helmet could prevent such injuries.

The research was aided by Dr. A. G. Watson, surgeon to the Hull-Ottawa Junior Canadiens, who encouraged the writing of the report.

CONTRACTOR OPPOSES JORDON'S SEVENTH BID

FORT ALBERNI—Mayor Loran Jordon, who has held office here for six consecutive two-year terms and is seeking re-election to his seventh, will be opposed in the civic election this month by Gustav Frigstad, contractor.

In 1945, Mr. Frigstad opposed the city's entering into a fixed assessment agreement with Bloedel, Stewart and Welch Ltd., now MacMillan & Bloedel. The agreement, which the city has tried unsuccessfully to break, costs it dearly in regard to school taxes.

Winter Works 'Rolling Monday'

(From Duncan Bureau) NORTH COWICHAN.—Coun. D. C. Morton, chairman of North Cowichan municipal works committee, said Thursday the parks section of the winter works program "should be rolling by Monday."

The winter works program will be spread over five months, with $31,500 allotted for roads and drainage, $4,680 for park work, and $2,940 for public utilities.

Coun. Morton said the Unemployment Insurance Commission co-operated with the municipality, and that men who were "able to do a day's work" were the ones interviewed.

The work will be spread around, Coun. Morton said, to give a larger number of men at least one pay cheque before Christmas.

Five men on welfare in Chemainus and five men recently laid off by the public works department will be considered for the extra employment available under the program, Coun. Morton said.

LOCAL 'PILLAR' TAKES SEATTLE BUSINESS POST

GANGES—Colin Mount, well-known Salt Spring Island businessman, will leave here shortly to join a group of Seattle businessmen headed by J. R. Cissna.

A native son of Salt Spring Island, he is active in Salt Spring Lands Ltd., Mount Bros. Ltd., and Gulf Islands Ferry Co. (1951) Ltd. He will begin work in his new post Jan. 4.

Past president of Salt Spring Island Chamber of Commerce, he was honored by the chamber at a dinner Friday night, when W. H. Bradley made a presentation to him on behalf of the members.

"Few people have given leadership and support of local projects like Mr. Mount," he said. "We are losing a pillar of our community."

Wright Re-Elected

SIDNEY—Norman Wright was returned by acclamation as president of Sidney and North Saanich Community Hall Association.

S. N. Magee is vice-president, Mrs. J. Kingerlee secretary, and D. W. Ruffe treasurer. Directors are Roy Tucker, P. Levar, M. Reed, R. C. Anderson, A. Boas, B. Eckert, T. A. Aiers, E. Graham and Mrs. Vivian Cowan.

When this is done, then $24,000 will be made available for the purchase of a modern truck and up-to-date equipment, and the district will be able to levy taxes to repay the money and support the department.

FIREMEN RESIGNED

It is intended to serve all of Salt Spring Island. The island has been without a fire department since October, when firemen resigned because of a lack of effective equipment. Residents became only too aware of the situation Nov. 20, when fire destroyed the Salt Spring Island Golf Club quarters for an estimated loss of $20,000.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Ron Gadsby, administrative assistant in the recreation and conservation department, who described parks in B.C.

$55,000 Fire Votes Set for Chemainus

CHEMAINUS—Two fire bylaws to be submitted to ratepayers of Chemainus Fire Protection District, Dec. 17, have been endorsed by Chemainus Ratepayers' Association.

The separate bylaws, totalling $55,000, will provide for an extension to the firehall and purchase of needed equipment.

Harry Ewart, president of the association and an insurance agent, told a special meeting of the group that fire insurance rates in Chemainus are the same as those in Vancouver.

Decision Delayed In Courtenay Loggers' Dispute

An arbitration board hearing was held in Vancouver Thursday to consider a dispute between the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) and the Comox Logging and Railway Company over a marshalling point for more than 200 loggers in the Courtenay area.

No decision was announced following the hearing.

Local 1363 of the IWA and the company have been arguing since 1955 over the point at which wage payment to the men involved should begin. The men must meet at a central point near Courtenay before moving into the working areas between Courtenay and Campbell River.

The arbitration board was appointed to settle the place which will become the marshalling point.

Would-Be Aldermen Pitch Their 'Woo'

11 Candidates Air Views At Civic Election Forum

Eleven aldermanic hopefuls shared the Jaycee civic forum platform Friday night in Central Junior High School.

Here, in order of their appearance, are the salient features of their platforms:

Alan E. Bigelow, city lawyer and Victoria-Civic Voters' Association slate member, said his experience as a lawyer could assist council's many formulations of bylaws.

Very Rev. J. L. W. McLean of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, said he was not conducting a publicity campaign "because I am not trying to sell McLean to the city of Victoria."

He said he had no axe to grind and no campaign promises to make but he was vitally interested in homes for the aged, recreational facilities for children, historic landmarks, a salt water swimming pool and dignified conduct of city business.

Eileen Neish, commercial fisherman, argued that business firms, not householders, should underwrite downtown off-street parking projects and bear the impending increases in water rates due to proposed construction of the Japan Gulch tunnel.

He also urged diversion of national defence expenditures into hospital, school and merchant marine construction.

Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson pledged herself to continuing to work for establishment of a family and juvenile court, extension of probation services and a Greater Victoria health board.

Mrs. Sally Rogers, housewife, said she would work for a tax incentive plan to enable homeowners to make improvements. She also said a better business bureau is needed, to end the "invasion of unscrupulous men who regard Victoria as a happy hunting ground."

In addition, Mrs. Rogers advocated establishment of five polling stations for future elections.

James Dismore, retired electrician, said he would work harmoniously with other aldermen if elected. He said he would oppose any tax increases and would fight any move to build a new City Hall. He added that he was an independent candidate.

Ald. M. H. Mooney said he was opposed to slate control

He won cheers when he reminded the audience that he led a fight to retain the Mountain View Home for aged men earlier this year after a welfare committee decided to close it.

John Carlow, ambulance operator and VCVA candidate, said he was a "completely independent candidate." He said he would support formation of a woman's auxiliary for Mountain View Home which was refused by council.

Mr. Carlow also favored establishment of a recreation commission and more frequent garbage disposal.

CCF Names Teacher To Seek Saanich Seat

Patrick H. Thomas, 27-year-old teacher at Esquimalt Senior High School, was chosen to carry the CCF banner in the next provincial election at a meeting of Saanich Constituency Association Friday night.

Mr. Thomas, born in Saskatchewan, was a candidate in the 1956 provincial election. He was educated in Victoria and obtained B.A. and B.Ed. degrees from the University of British Columbia.

CCF Leader Robert Strachan, chief speaker at the Saanich meeting, said labor had been made the whipping boy for "the creeping inflation which is destroying our social system and the purchasing power of the dollar."

CRIPPLED JET GUIDED OVER SCHOOL BY PILOT

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A heroic pilot stayed with his crashing jet fighter Friday and barely missed hitting a school filled with 1,000 children.

The flier, killed in the crash, was Ens. Albert Joe Hickman, 21, Sioux City, Iowa.

Witnesses said they saw Hickman waving frantically at children who were eating on the playground, as though to warn them to run.

"The plane came in about 100 feet above the school grounds," C. L. Bateman, a resident, said. "Just when it seemed the plane would smash into the school he lifted its nose just enough to clear the playground."

'Patronage' Denied In New Ferry Post

Premier Bennett was irked Friday when asked what were the qualifications which won the job of assistant manager of the new government ferry service between Sidney and the mainland for Ronald Worley.

Mr. Worley, six years the premier's executive assistant and later an ice cream retailer, takes over the $8,000-a-year post Jan. 1.

The ferry service manager, M. F. Aldous, was appointed at the same time.

There was "no patronage and no politics involved in any way," the premier said.

He pointed out that Mr. Aldous, now manager of Packers Steamship Co. Ltd., was a former campaign manager for ex-fisheries minister James Sinclair, a Liberal.

"Would you call that political patronage?" the premier asked.

He added: "We take ability wherever we find it." Of course some Social Creditors like Worley will get appointments. It would be terrible if their membership ruled them out."

Age Limit for Pilots

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal aviation agency Friday placed an age limit of 60 on U.S. airline pilots effective next March 15 and set new and stricter training requirements for co-pilots.

ACCOUNTS
at the BAY

A new credit plan at the BAY, developed to meet the needs of active, intelligent young people, who, though not yet permanently employed, want to manage their own incomes and allowances. This plan is especially for students from 16 to 20 years of age, in high school, vocational school or university. It is designed to help them learn to manage a greater part of their own affairs... under a controlled, intelligent credit system approved by their parents.

Why a Special Account for Young People?

An ever-increasing number of young people use credit wisely, and the rising generation of our youth now take credit buying for granted. They have the use of the family charge account and even budget accounts sanctioned by their parents. We feel that most people agree that our young people should learn early the use and value of a good personal credit rating. Many young people work part-time, weekends and Summers. Many have allowances; it is natural that they should want some independence in the way their money is spent. The BAY'S "Career Account" offers a systematic means of keeping track of purchases.

Here's How It Works!

- Available to responsible young men and women 16 to 20 years of age, who have not started permanent employment but who have some income or allowance of their own.
- The maximum amount of credit allowed at any given time will be $30.00.
- The minimum monthly payment is $2.00, repayment period not to exceed six months, and the account can be used as often as required so long as the balance owed does not exceed $30.00.
- A small carrying charge is added to each monthly statement, which will be cancelled if total account is paid within 90 days.
- Smart identification cards will be provided and must be presented with every purchase on the "Career Account."

If you have a young son or daughter that you consider to be responsible and would like to have him or her learn to enjoy the uses of credit, the "Career Account" way — then

Please complete the attached application form below and send it or have the young people themselves bring it into the store to the Accounts Office, 4th Floor, and we will explain the benefits of a "Career Account" in detail.

Two Reeves a Shoo-In Unless Weekend Stirs Up Opponents

The reeves of Saanich and Esquimalt today are less than 48 hours away from re-election by acclamation.

No one so far is contesting the seats held by Reeve George Chatterton of Saanich and Reeve A. C. Wurtele of Esquimalt.

Deadline for filing nominations is noon Monday.

The Saanich elections are expected to be hotly contested. Two new council candidates today tossed their hats into the election ring, raising the number of contestants to five.

The first, Albert W. Reid, 4305 Gordon Head, a retired publisher and well-known businessman, is a comparative newcomer in municipal politics. He was among eight candidates who ran in this year's June by-election, polling the most votes after Coun. Joseph Casey, who won the seat.

Mr. Reid favors town planning, is sympathetic to the problems of Saanich farmers. He also believes there should be some adjustments in assessing older homes affecting people with fixed incomes.

"I think there has been too much disharmony on Saanich council in the past six months," he said in announcing his candidature. "Personally, conflicts have been permitted to interfere with the administration of municipal business."

The other new candidate is Gregory Cook, 1091 Laburnum, a manual arts teacher, who has been unsuccessful in several municipal elections.

Other candidates are veteran Coun. Leslie Passmore, Coun. Stanley Murphy, who will seek re-election, and Ian H. Campbell, 5038 Wesley, an ironworker employed at HMC Dockyard.

Two election rallies are scheduled for next Thursday to provide ratepayers with an opportunity of hearing and meeting the candidates. They will be held in the Royal Oak Women's Institute Hall and at St. George's Hall at 8 p.m.

A lively contest is also scheduled for a vacant seat on the board of School District 63 which takes in the rural area of Central Saanich and Sidney.

To date three candidates have filed nomination papers. They include Fred Berg, 4576 Wilkinson Road, employed as regional construction supervisor of Veterans Land Act for the Vancouver Island area. He is a former physical education instructor.

The others are Louis Schenck, 5246 Parker, Cordova Bay, a machinist at HMC Dockyard, and Mrs. J. M. Thomas, 4781 Timber Place.

In School District 61, Mrs. Francis M. B. Thompson will run again for office.

Saanich ratepayers will also vote on a referendum asking them if they approve of council taking $30,000 from general revenue for establishment of a special fund for future park development.

All municipalities will vote on fluoridation.

There is a possibility that Esquimalt voters will have only the fluoridation referendum on their ballots this year unless some last-minute candidates come forward to contest the election of a new reeve and three councillors.

Reeve Wurtele is seeking his fifth term and may win re-election by acclamation for the first time in his 14-year civic career.

NONE IN SIGHT

No opponent has declared himself for the chief municipal post and none appears to be in sight.

Councillors Walter Holder and G. K. Sammon have announced they will run for re-election. The third opening is covered by a newcomer at the moment, Harold Peter Francis, 38-year-old past president of Esquimalt Legion.

Coun. Arthur Fields, whose term expires next month, so far has not revealed whether he will run for re-election. No other candidates have been announced.

Four candidates have already filed papers for three openings on Oak Bay council while the contest for the reeve-ship so far appears to be a two-way fight.

Coun. Fred Hawes is running for a one-year term; Couns. Allan L. Cox and Gordon Elworthy will contend for two-year vacancies.

New addition to the council contest is former councillor James W. Maltby, 2965 Foul Bay, who served on council from 1953 to 1956.

Contesting the reeve-ship are the present reeve, George Murdoch and former councillor Geoffrey Ellis, who resigned a few days ago to become eligible.

STANDS AGAIN

Present school trustee W. C. Gelling, 2090 Kings, will stand for re-election to the Greater Victoria School Board.

Mr. Hawes in announcing he will run for a one-year seat, is in effect aiming at the seat left vacant by Mr. Ellis who was half-way through his two-year term.

All candidates will present their platforms for election at a public gathering Wednesday, Dec. 10, at 8 p.m. in Oak Bay Junior High School.

THEATRE PACKED

Brakeman's Antics Draw 3,000 Fans

Brakeman Bill and Crazy Donkey, the popular TV duo, attracted nearly 3,000 children to the Odeon Theatre today and their two stage shows were fairly drenched with laughter and applause.

Brakeman, who in real life is Bill McLain of Seattle, drove through the streets of Victoria in a locomotive used in the May 24 parade by HMCS Naden and was welcomed outside the Odeon by a crowd of children and adults.

The theatre was already packed when he entered.

"It was certainly a wonderful welcome," Bill said.

The parade started from the Olde England Inn on Lampson Street, where Bill is staying. Hundreds of children came to see him off and a number rode with him in the locomotive.

"There was no holding them," said Sam Lane, proprietor of the Olde England Inn, who arranged the visit.

Brakeman Bill received another enthusiastic reception from children at the Queen Alexandra Solarium, Gordon Head which he visited at the request of Mrs. John Jervis, whose son Christopher is a patient there.

He has conducted his daily TV program over Channel 11 Seattle-Tacoma for four years. Before that he had three years with the program on radio.

MONTE ROBERTS

Meet our newest contributor, Pete the Beat, who is kind enough to address us residents of squaresville on the subject of the Space Age.

Like, what I want to know is, what's with this jazz about out of this world and like that?

Here I am, I got a good pad, who wants I should take off for the moon, like?

So there's this monk, his handle is Sam, and I read in the flacks this Sam—he's a Monk, man not a Man—I read he is hustled off his pad and shot in a thing up so high it's too far down.

Like, man, this monk is on his pad, keeping his nose clean, and then—zoom—he's out in the wild blue wander.

Man, this is a drag. What kind of jazz would you call it if you were yanked off your pad and shot—zoom—into the wild blue wander?

You'd say this was strictly from outsville, that's what you'd say.

You'd say, gimme back my pad, my loafa bread, and my jugga gin.

So what you think the Monk, this Sam, said?

What he said, man, is let's get back to my pad, like. So these guys from squaresville, these thinker-dinkers, what do they do?

They shoot Sam the Monk 55 miles into the wild blue wander, and they bring him back 55 miles and then dunk him in the wild blue ocean.

Like Sam the Monk is a yo-yo, and who pulls the strings?

Egg-heads strictly from thinksville.

Which if they were in an elevator in a 12-storey building, they would get off at the second floor and see if Sam the Monk could make it to the 22nd storey and still be in alliveness.

Man, I don't dig this jazz, so I think I'll stick to my own pad, like, and I wish I could say the same for Sam the Monk.

New Sidney Ferry Wharf Used First Time Monday

The new federal government ferry terminal at Sidney will go into service for the first time Monday.

At 12:45 p.m., the Washington State Ferry Mv. Evergreen State will dock, and will leave at 1 p.m. for Anacortes.

The company provides one round-trip daily during the winter, more frequent service in the summer.

The new wharf is at the junction of First and Second Streets, and is approached from the Patricia Bay Highway via Beacon Avenue.

The wharf is leased from the government by the state-owned ferry company.

Asked if Victorians could be notified ahead of any further sonic blasts or if U.S. fighter aircraft would be asked to conduct future manoeuvres over open waters, Gen. Pearkes said: "Wherever these planes break the sound barrier there's bound to be a bit of an explosion, you know."

The minister said he had not yet received a telegram of protest sent by Mayor Percy Scurrah.

Chief John Blackstock called for advance warning of jet fighter exercises to prevent panic.

He also claimed to have information that money available for the projects had been transferred away from the west coast. In his opinion, it would be used to extend runways at Toronto's Malton airport.

"I have no information on this at all," said Gen. Pearkes.

"It's properly a department of transport matter but as the member for Saanich-Esquamalt I have been in close contact with Transport Minister Hees and he has never indicated expansion will not go ahead."

Gen. Pearkes was "surprised" and "delighted" to learn that Canadian Pacific Airlines plans to land a weekly flight from Honolulu at Pat Bay airport commencing Jan. 2. But he declined to comment on whether airport runways would be lengthened from 5,030 feet to 6,620 feet to allow DC-6B planes to take off.

Mayor Percy Scurrah said he couldn't believe plans have been shelved.

Extension of the runways would give Victoria "a good chance" of getting an east-bound flight from here, he said.

The mayor said when he was in Ottawa recently he was assured the only holdup was that plans hadn't been completed by architects.

"There were no ifs, ands or buts. We were going to get the runways and the building."

Chamber of Commerce president W. A. Pendray said "They have to do something. We'll just keep pounding away at them until they do."

'Boom' Data To Pearkes On Monday

Defence Minister George Pearkes will study official reports "first thing Monday morning" on the sonic explosion in Victoria last Wednesday when four U.S. jet fighters broke the sound barrier simultaneously.

The rumble caused a mild panic among residents.

He told the Times by telephone from Ottawa today the matter has been brought to his attention.

Asked if Victorians could be notified ahead of any further sonic blasts or if U.S. fighter aircraft would be asked to conduct future manoeuvres over open waters, Gen. Pearkes said: "Wherever these planes break the sound barrier there's bound to be a bit of an explosion, you know."

Airport Plans 'Alive'—Pearkes

If plans for expansion of Patricia Bay Airport have been permanently shelved Defence Minister George Pearkes knows nothing about it.

The member from Saanich-Esquamalt told the Times by telephone from Ottawa today the "last I heard plans to go ahead with expansion at the airport were still in effect but they may not be implemented in the near future."

The minister was commenting on a statement by M. R. Eaton, past president, Sidney Chamber of Commerce, who said he had reliable information the federal government will not extend runways and build a new administration building at Pat Bay airport.

Mr. Eaton said the expansion is "absolutely a dead duck as far as the federal government is concerned."

It contains a selection of carols and Christmas songs suitable for parties during the festive season and has proved highly popular each year.

READY TO MEET U.S.

United Front On Columbia

Complete agreement on future development of the Columbia River in co-operation with the United States was reached by federal and provincial ministers meeting here Friday.

External Affairs Minister Howard Green and other officials described the full-day session of the federal-provincial liaison committee on Columbia development as "very fruitful."

Its job was to agree on a united stand on the Canadian position in negotiations with the U.S.—and how much Canada would get out of Columbia development.

A provincial official said of the conference:

"We agreed on where we are going and we have a united front to present to the States, which still has to get all its various agencies together on common ground."

The official added:

"We will be lucky if an international agreement on downstream benefits is reached by next spring."

After that he said there would have to be more negotiations on the engineering to be done and he felt the day was still "far off" when the first shovel would be put in the ground.

Besides Mr. Green, the liaison committee includes Resources Minister Hamilton, provincial Lands Minister Williston and Attorney-General Bonner.

The ministers were surrounded by staffs of technical experts and Gen. A. G. L. MacNaughton, Canadian chairman of the International Joint Commission, sat in on the talks.

50-50 SPLIT

Negotiations with the U.S. will be on the basic question of how much power Canada will get back from the extra generation provided on the U.S. side from water stored behind Columbia dams in Canada.

Lands Minister Williston has indicated that the committee is working on the basis of Canada getting a 50 per cent return of the extra power generated by the giant scheme.

Mr. Green said at a press conference Thursday night he expected the IJC to report in the next few weeks and he believed the Columbia development could be started by 1960.

But Friday he clarified this. He said he did not mean to imply that the actual shovel work could begin next year but that a start could be made then on the engineering phase of the massive project.

much of their training in classrooms and workshops ashore. Since the three-year plan was adopted, the navy is gradually shifting training to "on-the-job" that is at sea.

New entries now receive basic training at HMCS Cornwallis, short training establishment on the east coast. After basic training, they can choose a specific type of trades training, but are immediately drafted to a ship.

Their training is carried out while they carry on their regular duties at sea.

Capt. Hennessy, who was executive officer of HMCS Quebec when the cruiser re-commissioned at Esquimalt, will arrive at HMC Dockyard Monday from Ottawa.

Commanding officers of all ships at the command will be briefed on the training plan by Capt. Hennessy, and heads of shore departments will also hear the lectures.

He will leave Thursday by air for San Diego, where he will join two Pacific Command destroyer escorts, HMCS Ottawa and Saguenay. The ships are now exercising in California waters.

Capt. Hennessy will leave San Diego for Halifax a week from Sunday, and will repeat his lecture schedule there.

NEW TRAINING OUTLINED NEXT WEEK

Navy Gets On-Job Pep Talk

The Royal Canadian Navy's new concept of "on-the-job" training will be explained to officers, non-commissioned officers, and department heads of the Pacific Command next week.

A series of lectures will be given by Capt. Ralph L. Hennessy, director of naval training, who has been working on the project since it was instituted about a year ago.

The "on-the-job" concept came into being when the navy changed its first term of enlistment from a five to a three-year period.

List of Inexpensive Gifts She'll Love

"What personal item, under the value of $10, would you like to find under your Christmas tree?"

This is the question I have been asking my friends all week and I am sure that some of the answers may be of help to you on your gift shopping junkets.

Lingerie is the most popular choice. Not a simple utility garment which many women choose for themselves but something extra fussy with ruffles of lace.

A gift of lingerie should not present too much of a problem as the choice is unlimited. Pettislips and pettisheaths are very popular and many are generously trimmed with six to eight inches of lace or delicate fluting. Remember the new shade—spice—for the gal who has gone overboard on brown.

A real fun item which is quite a recent innovation is "petticoats!" These are slender knee-length lace-trimmed panties to be worn under the suit or dress that does not require a slip.

Another gay gift could be sleepwear—capri pants and full flaring camisole top in red nylon with white dots. How about a lovely satin-covered box containing seven pairs of panties, a different color for every day in the week.

A small package containing many hours of pleasure is perfume or cologne. One gal wants someone to choose a scent which will be a complete change and a surprise. The friend who chooses this gift should know the recipient fairly well. There are sophisticated new crystal-cut spray bottles of "Perfume Mist" sporting handsome gold caps. A jeweled purse-size container for her favorite perfume makes a discriminating woman happy.

Several girls mentioned hose. The sheerest, most expensive variety instead of the 99-cent brand they are apt to buy for themselves.

A friend who smokes wants a glamor cigarette lighter, "really just for me... all sparkle and glitter." Two golfing pals hope for colored leotights to keep legs snug and warm on breezy days. During a bridge game one player said she hoped for some special bridge cards. Not tailored and plain but with delicate flowers or, even more personal, her Christian name on the back of each card.

All ready for holiday hostessing is today's model. She's happy and relaxed because her shopping is done and her parcels are attractively wrapped. Her softly draped at-home robe is styled in luxurious rose silk taffeta. An oversize shawl collar falls softly about the shoulders, and the full step-in skirt ties high at the waist in a regal Empire manner.

Every woman can use an extra lipstick, especially one in a glamor case. The very newest is "the heart shape look." The lipstick itself, not the case, is heart shaped. For those who are unable to accustom themselves to a lip brush one can simply shape and color the lips at the same time with this revolutionary shape in lipstick. Hold the point of the heart up. Use the point for your upper lip and the curve for your lower lip.

Costume jewelry was mentioned several times but this should be chosen with great care with a certain ensemble. My friends were so cooperative that this list will be continued next Saturday. I know there are always quite a few late shoppers.

Positively no peeking! Gaily wrapped packages with her name on the tag are tempting but it is too, too early. Pale magenta butterflies flutter across the quilted white silk chiffon "coolie" jacket the model wears. It's cropped to hipline level and slit high at the sides. Worn with gleaming white silk satin pyjamas.

LOUISE DAVIS

ON ETIQUETTE

Obligations of a house guest.

A high school classmate, who moved to another city last summer, has asked me to spend a few days with her and her family between Christmas and New Year's. I have never visited anyone before and wonder what my obligations are. Would you please give me some suggestions?

Louise Davis answers: If you are considerate and thoughtful of all of the family, you will instinctively know what to do. Here are some suggestions: Help with the household chores, such as making your bed, assist with meal preparations and dishwashing, keep your room tidy, don't usurp the bathroom, keep your towels and wash-cloth neatly folded on the rack designated for you. Be neat and presentable from the moment you finish dressing in the morning and be cheerful. I suggest that you take your friend and her mother a gift, but that could even wait until you return home. A bread and butter letter to the girl and to her mother, of course, is a must.

Lavender Invitations: When ordering wedding invitations, would lavender paper be correct? I understand that this is something new.

Louise Davis Answers: I strongly advise anyone not to veer from the conventional method when it comes to such things as wedding invitations.

St. David's Church Bazaar

Centred by a lighted Christmas tree and decorated with greens and holly, St. David's Church hall presented an attractive setting for the annual Christmas bazaar held Wednesday afternoon.

Introduced by Mrs. K. M. Lewis, president of St. David's Women's Guild, and bazaar convener Canon F. C. Vaughan-Birch, rector of Sidney and North Saanich churches, opened the affair.

Needlework was sold by Mrs. S. Morgan Hobbs and Mrs. J. Humble; superfluities, Mrs. J. Kidson, Mrs. F. Wilmet and Mrs. J. Hackwell; gifts and novelties, Mrs. J. Wyper and Mrs. W. Ronald; parcels of mystery, Mrs. P. Sharp and Mrs. D. McKay.

A group of little girls under direction of Miss Vivian Talbot had a stalk of tree decorations and novelties. Mrs. R. Lowe was in charge of a contest for a dressed-doll; Mrs. J. B. Minchin, checking, and Mrs. A. Miller sold tea tickets. Tea was served in the guild rooms under convener Mrs. P. Williams, assisted by Mrs. N. Westwood, Mrs. R. Sinkinson, Mrs. T. Anderson, Mrs. J. Wilmet and Mrs. Mackinrot. Proceeds were $225.

Part of an unexpected legacy, left to a Royal Oak, B.C., resident is giving a delighted Korean school boy the opportunity to continue his studies. The windfall, shared with the Unitarian Service Committee, 78 Sparks Street, Ottawa, will pay for one of the 900 scholarships that have been set up by the all-Canadian organization this year for gifted, Korean war orphans.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Time's A'wasting!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Please don't print my name because everyone in town knows me. Now for my problem: I have been widowed many years. I've had numerous chances to remarry but I will not go out with just anybody who rings me up.

There is one very desirable professional man (retired) who has been inviting me out consistently. I am interested in him and he seems to enjoy my company. But he has one annoying habit that puzzles me: He keeps looking at his watch all evening!

Do you think this means he is eager to get the evening over with? Should I remark on this annoying habit of his? I wish I could figure him out.

DEAR PUZZLED: Don't try to figure out what makes him tick, or you'll have lots of time on your hands.

DEAR ABBY: My mother and father have been married happily for 15 years, or at least I thought they were. My mother met a man recently. Every time I come home from school his car is in our driveway. She calls him on the telephone and he calls her when my father isn't home. Maybe it is only my imagination and maybe it isn't even any of my business, but do you think I should ask my mother what it is all about?

DEAR WORRIED: It is certainly your business. Ask your mother.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is very sensitive because he can't read very fast or very well. He was taught to read by sight, but when it comes to a new word, he can't sound it out. I've tried to help him, but I'm no teacher.

He won't go to church because he's afraid he might be called upon to read aloud. His boss told him that if he took some schooling at work they'd have courses to teach the employees more about their work) his chances for promotion would be excellent. But he is ashamed to let anyone know how poorly he reads. Any suggestions would be very much appreciated.

HIS WIFE: DEAR WIFE: There is no "shame" in not knowing. Only in refusing to learn. Almost all communities have evening classes for adults who wish to learn elementary reading, writing and arithmetic.

CONFIDENTIAL TO THE PROFESSOR: I disagree. Civilization is making progress. In every war, they kill you a new way.

What's your problem? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, care of this paper. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Etiquette in Sending Your Christmas Cards

Etiquette is just as important in Christmas card sending as in any other form of social contact.

Here are a few do's and don'ts drawn up by experts to help you avoid making a "faux pas."

Do address the envelope to both husband and wife, even if you know only the husband. The only exception is the semi-business card you send to a man's office instead of his home.

Do be sure to address the envelope correctly. Re-check every address that's more than a year old. The telephone company has directories with addresses for this area and for other cities as well.

Do not typewrite on the envelope. The name and address of the person receiving your card should be handwritten. Your own return address should be handwritten or imprinted.

Do put your return address on the envelope. This year you can have the return address imprinted on the envelope, if you don't have time to write it in longhand.

If you're going to have your family's name imprinted on the card, decide first on the degree of formality or informality you want. For business acquaintances, use the formal imprint: Mr. and Mrs. John Brown.

For friends and relatives, the imprint might read: Jane and John Brown (or John and Jane Brown).

If you want the imprint to be even more informal, it might read: The Browns, Jane and John.

If the imprint or signature lists the names of your children, name them according to age. For instance, the imprint might read:

The Browns, John, Jane, Jimmy, Sally and Tommy. Colored ink is entirely proper both for signing the card and addressing the envelope—provided it harmonizes with the color-scheme of the card's design. The traditional Christmas red is popular and adds a note of gay informality.

And after taking all these precautions, the inevitable will happen: You'll receive a lovely Christmas card from someone who wasn't on your list.

But there's no need to be too embarrassed by this. You can send off a card that expresses your thanks for the greeting and at the same time wishes the recipient a Happy New Year.

Do You Want Grace, Co-Ordination, Balance?

You can have the prettiest figure in the world—but unless you are limber and have good co-ordination you will not appear graceful and your figure may be out of line.

Today I would like to give you a few general exercises which will develop grace, co-ordination and balance. Exercise also is absolutely essential if you wish to remain firm and keep your muscles elastic.

1. Stand erect. Raise your arms side-ward-upward to overhead position as you lift your heels from the floor and rise high on your toes. Inhale as you do this. Return the arms side-ward-downward to sides as you lower heels to the floor and exhale. Continue slowly, reaching high and breathing deeply.

2. Stand tall. Raise the arms to side-ward, shoulder height position. Lower the arms and swing them in front of the body, crossing them. As you do this raise the right leg side-ward as high as you can. Lower leg, to floor as you swing arms back to shoulder height position. Continue. After a while do the same thing but raise and lower the left leg.

3. Stand with the feet pointing straight ahead. Bend both knees all the way down and touch the floor with the fingertips, between the knees. Straighten the legs and raise the arms upward over the head, reaching for the ceiling. Again bend the knees and touch the floor between the

Use Care During Pre-Christmas Shopping and Live to Enjoy It

OTTAWA, Ont. — What's the use of shopping if you get killed or injured in the process?

This question — a timely one, comes from Mrs. G. D. Finlayson, president of the National Council of Women of Canada.

All Canadian housewives and mothers should stay alive to enjoy the year-end festivities and have the pleasure of handing out gifts to their husbands and children, she added.

Mrs. Finlayson urges Canadian women to adhere to the following simple rules during the busy pre-Christmas shopping period:

1. Don't wait till the last minute to do your shopping. The hurry of modern life has already killed too many drivers and pedestrians.

2. When you're through with your shopping, don't rush out of the store. Relax awhile over a cup of coffee or some other alertness beverage. This will sharpen your reflexes, keep you alert on the way home.

3. When you leave the store, concentrate on that vital job of walking or driving home unharmed.

4. Have your parcels delivered to your house instead of having your arms full when making your way through traffic.

Hostesses entertaining relatives and friends during the holiday season should always keep in mind that some of them will be driving. Hostesses can help even those who don't drive to stay alert on the way home by serving hot, strong coffee before the end of the evening," Mrs. Finlayson suggested.

Woman Plans Retirement Program

TORONTO (CP) — A vivacious Toronto psychology professor, Dr. Mary Laurence, is undertaking the first study in Canada of the retirement problems of business and career women.

Organization work for the research program is now under way at the university in Toronto but it will be early next year before actual data is collected.

The study is expected to produce recommendations and programs to prepare young business women for the adjustments of retirement in much the same way that other studies have produced retirement programs for business men.

BIG INCREASE

Her interest in the topic, Dr. Laurence says, partially stems from the fact that she's a career woman herself. She explained that before the Second World War women made up less than 10 per cent of Canada's working force but this figure has increased to 24 per cent.

"The time has come to pinpoint the retirement problems of these women," she says.

The retirement problems of men, studied at various times, are not applicable to women because of women's dual role in life—earning a living and keeping a home. Then, too, 95 per cent of working men are married compared with only 40 per cent of working women. The remaining 60 per cent have no children to help occupy their time after retirement.

A committee of deans, presided over by university president Dr. Murray G. Ross, and several graduate students will assist Dr. Laurence.

Liberian Woman in UN Delightfully Outspoken

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—A loquacious woman lawyer from Liberia is on her way to becoming a UN legend. Angie Brooks, 31, buxom, gingery daughter of a Liberian Baptist preacher, has been bubbling forth views in the UN trusteeship committee for five years to the delight of the gallery. Colleagues fondly refer to her as Our Miss Brooks after the television schoolmarm. They estimate she speaks out in the committee about once every 20 minutes, quite an average in a body of 82 delegates. "It isn't how much how often she speaks," commented one delegate, "but what she says." Miss Brooks usually says whatever pops into her head. In a diplomatic forum usually guided by protocol, such an approach can be startling. During heated debate on a trusteeship issue last year, Miss Brooks suddenly asked for the floor to announce she had just been named assistant foreign minister of Liberia. "That gave us a bit of a start," said a delegate from the British Commonwealth, "but it didn't hold a candle to her remarks during the farewell speeches at the close of the 1959 session. When it came to Angie's, she informed us she would be happy to serve the following year as chairman of the committee. You could have heard a pin drop after that one." The following year Miss Brooks was elected vice-chairman—only one step from her goal.

Toys Realistic Now

MONTREAL (CP)—Perhaps little girls now won't have to wait for domestic science classes to learn the arts of homemaking. A preview of discoveries to be made on Christmas morning disclosed that a greater number of the toys being turned out by a Canadian toy company, Canadian Playthings Manufacturers, are replicas of the things mama has around the house. For instance a few doll, 36 inches high, could double for a three-year-old child. Its hair can be washed, combed and curled—but not dyed or bleached—and the little mother can dress it in the clothes she wears herself. The living doll may have difficulty lugging her life-sized companion around, but its limbs move, are washable and warm to the touch. It is made of lightweight plastic. Another newcomer is a barbecue set which threatens to relegate the old-fashioned teaset to the shade. It includes everything from a cauldron to a two-pronged fork to flip the steaks. There the realism ends, however—the young cook will have to provide her own steaks. Tea-sets have been given a lift. A silver service has been added to cups and saucers but sometimes the service, complete with engraving, is gold-colored so that mother doesn't mistake it for the real thing. Nor have boys been forgotten. Former metal trucks, mobile cranes, trains and other equipment of miniature size have been enlarged "so that they can ride them as well as push them," said Mr. Schaffter.

Pictured after their recent marriage in St. John's Anglican Church are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Frederic Hughes. Attractive dark-haired bride is the former Nancy Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Clark of Victoria. Her groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Hughes of Shawnigan Lake. Canon George Biddle officiated at the evening service. ### Let Men Into Your Kitchen, Women Urges Swedish Food Expert

NEW YORK (UPI)—Blessings on Mrs. Emmie Berg, a food authority from Sweden. And would that cooking experts copied. Mrs. Berg feels that if the man of the house wants to cook, let him learn how to market as well as how to mess the kitchen; teach him menu planning to get him off a steak and French fries diet. And above all, turn out an amateur chef who is professional enough to prepare the whole meal from soup to nuts. Mrs. Berg, a tall, sparsely-built woman of 55, teaches cooking as part of an adult education program at the University of Gothenburg. One course is for women only; one for men only; and a third, an advanced course, mixes the sexes and gives them instruction in elaborate dishes, French style. The men, some married, some single, attend school three hours a night, one night a week for eight weeks.

Paris, has taught at the Bon Gout cooking school in Palm Beach, has written several cookbooks and acts as consultant to Swedish food industries. WRITER She is one of the contributors to and editors of Sweden's best-known works on food—"The Great Cookbook," which covers all facets of preparation, Swedish style, including a smorgasbord. "Swedish cooking is amazingly French," she said, "Especially the sauces, the stuffings, the game dishes, and some of the festive dishes. Our kings used to import French chefs, and I've found recipes as far back as 1600 with French characteristics." Mrs. Berg entertains frequently at home and does the cooking herself. "I'm a quick cook," she said, "I won't spend more than two hours in the kitchen even for 16 people. But it helps that I don't have to look up the recipes."

OF ALL PLACES

By HORACE SUTTON

WENATCHEE, Wash. — I have been knocking around the apple country with a posse of apple-knockers and have come up with a considerable amount of applesauce which I should like you all to commit to memory.

Wenatchee, which is known wide, if not far, as the Apple Bowl of the World, has hung a neon-lighted apple at each entrance to town. It ships 20,000 carloads of apples each year. That comes out to one billion 600 million apples per annum which, if eaten one a day, would keep the doctor away for the next 300 hundred light years. As a matter of fact, if everyone took up the habit, it would put a serious crimp in the entire medical world.

watch apple-packing clear through Christmas, and take their meals in the Apple Box of the Cascade Hotel here, a decorous den whose walls are adorned not with crystal chandeliers, not with Picassos and Modiglianis but with the label-end of apple boxes.

Both Yakima, the Fruit Bowl of the World, and Wenatchee, the globe's apple bowl, invite the wayfarer to step inside its packing and storage plants, a fascinating and perfume exercise. The apples arrive in huge bins which are dumped, thundering, into washing and drying machines. Then they take off on conveyor belts, little ones dropping into little holes, big ones dropping into big holes.

Lightning Fast

Wrappers grab them with the right hand, reach for a piece of tissue paper with the left, and cover and box the apple all in one lightning motion. It takes from harvest time, about the first week in September, until Christmas time, to get all the apples washed, dressed, boxed and sent off to market. While they wait, the apples are stored, contented and edible for a year, giving off a clean, strong apple smell.

Apples are sorted by degree of perfection into culls, C grade, fancy and extra fancy. Sometimes stores in town show off giant examples which are a fifth grade, or wow, variety. Any of the apple shippers will sell and ship in fancy boxes anything from one lone apple to a bushel-boxful. And if you're willing to take them with a few bumps and bruises, you can put a huge basketful in the trunk of your car for $1.50.

EVEN HAS ATTRACTIVE GIRLS

London Opens Weather Shop

London has always been the world's greatest shopping centre—in fact, the place is full to the brim with dress shops, jewellery shops, shoe shops, food shops, book shops, toy shops... and so on.

Now a new one has been added.

The meteorological office has opened London's first weather shop!

It is part of the new premises of the London Forecasting Office in Kingsway.

By opening the "shop," the MO hopes to reduce the number of inquiries made at its airfield stations. These reached a total of 400,000 during the past year!

For the technically-minded, the "shop" displays up-to-the-minute maps of weather conditions.

But for the uninitiated there is a team of attractive girls to explain things.

There is also a consulting room, where a forecaster provides personal callers with information about weather conditions in any given area. And for window shoppers a simple chart, showing the hour-to-hour state of the weather, faces on to the street.

London's "weather shop" will supplement the MO's existing telephone weather information service, which receives more than five million calls a year.

FLAWS PLAGUE ANCIENT ART

Alchemy, as you will remember, was a mystic ritual of incantations, distillations and charms, the object of which was the changing of baser metals into gold. Theophrastus Bombastus von Hohenheim, better known as Paracelsus, was instrumental in the alteration of its purposes.

Born on Dec. 17, 1493, Paracelsus received his education from his father, an accomplished alchemist. While he was experimenting in his father's laboratory, Paracelsus observed that the alchemic processes might be put to better use seeking out new cures for disease. In later life, Paracelsus succeeded in implanting this idea in the minds of others.

Paracelsus had an exciting, if somewhat checkered, career. By no means a sterling character, he was all his life engaged in bitter controversies with his colleagues, who called him a charlatan. But for all his shortcomings, Paracelsus is credited with contributing towards a significant advance in the techniques of science.

The illustration above was intended to show the future scholar in his father's workshop. However, the artist made at least 10 errors in it. Some might be called the result of careless drawing, the others are errors of fact.

How many can you find?

The title of "Apple King of the World" was bestowed on Fred Willhouse, of Kansas, who owned the world's largest orchard, 1,600 acres. His first crop—yield was 1,500 bushels from 537 acres. Ten years later, his yield jumped to 7,710 bushels. It required 200 freight cars to have the huge crop moved to eastern markets.

FAVORITE STAGE BELIEFS

TEST WITS
Superstitions of stage folk—stars of stage, screen and TV, etc.—are legendary. Perhaps this is because successful engagements are held dependent to some extent on the elements of chance. At any rate, five of the theatrical world's favorite jinx preventative are stated below. See if you can complete them.

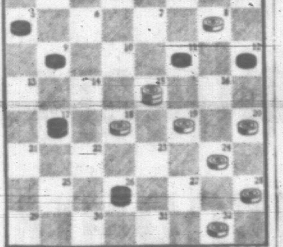

1. Never — in an actor's dressing room.
2. Never carry an — on the stage.
3. Never recite a play's — before opening night.
4. Never sing "Goodbye Forever" in the —.
5. Never throw away one's first —.

JUST RIDDLE ME THIS

Why is a crossword puzzle like the beginning of an argument?

Answer: One word leads to another.

IT'S YOUR MOVE

By MILLARD HOPPER
There are a lot of men still in play here, but White looks ahead to a victory in three moves. It's White's turn, moving up the board. See if you can plot White's course to win. Hint: to begin, concentrate on square 19.

The finest tapestries of the Middle Ages came from France and Flanders.

MORE ON BEES

A couple of bees out on a honey-gathering flight finally came to a plant on which they expected to find some flowers, but to their great surprise, they found it bare of all blooms and nearly all of its leaves. Another creature had been there before them and was still enjoying a final nibble. What creature do you suppose it was? To find out, connect dots in diagram above.

CUPS AND SAUSAGES
While en route home from a cocktail party the other evening, Tobacco Peek spotted a formation of sausage-like flying saucers. There was a sausage before two sausages, a sausage behind two sausages and a sausage between two sausages.

How many sausages did Peek claim to have seen in all?

The native music of the Bahamas is called "goombay."

Consider the Nut Tree For Shading Small Lawn

By JACK BEASTALL

A fine ornamental and shade tree for a small lawn is one of several kinds of nuts which have proved satisfactory under local conditions.

Such trees are not large and are therefore ideally suited to the modern home and garden, and habit of growth is quite attractive. Foliage is usually quite dense and a pleasing dark green, and the trees also bear edible nuts of a quality superior to imported crops.

Where a lawn shade tree is needed it would be worth while giving nut trees consideration. They have been tested and successfully grown here for a number of years and varieties suited to the local climate are readily available.

Jack

All trees, whether fruiting or ornamental, should be planted without further delay. There is an old saying that a tree planted in late fall will grow and thrive; planted in spring it may (period).

Soil improvement is work to be carried out when ground is vacant or when plants are resting, and a valuable addition to any soil is seaweed.

Strong winds of November and December play havoc with help beds and litter beaches with this useful aquatic plant. Collecting it can be a pleasant outing for the whole family. A beach picnic on a mild December day, complete with a vacuum jug of hot coffee and a stack of ham sandwiches, is an experience not known to many gardeners and a sharp contrast to a beach on a sultry summer's afternoon.

For convenience in handling, the lengths of kelp are cut into pieces about six inches long with a small axe or a brush-slashing knife.

MOST PLENTIFUL

While old sacks are convenient for carrying the seaweed from beach to car, it is best to have watertight containers in the car so that salt water will not corrode the metal.

Other types of seaweed are just as useful in the garden as kelp, although the latter is most plentiful on local beaches.

In the garden, cut pieces may be spread over the soil immediately, but not too close to stems or crowns of plants.

Within a week it will have lost a considerable portion of its moisture content and collapsed. The gardener can then see how thickly it should be applied to give good coverage to the soil.

The residue is lightly forked into the soil when beds and borders receive their spring weeding and clean-up.

Several readers have enquired about the time for pruning fruit trees. In this area it is usual to leave the work, as far as home gardens are concerned, until after the worst of the cold weather has passed.

The last 10 days of February usually prove satisfactory, and at this time immature growths which have been damaged by cold can be readily distinguished and removed.

This saves going over the trees a second time, after leaf growth starts, to remove portions which have been winter killed.

Rose bushes are not pruned until somewhere between mid-March and mid-April according to location of the garden and proximity of salt water, which has a moderating effect on air temperatures and lessens the chance of night frost.

Mention of frost reminds us that frequent checking of newly planted, or transplanted, material is necessary in order to keep soil firmly around the roots.

Frost tends to lift and loosen soil which has been recently dug and then saturated with rain. Small plants are sometimes lifted and left on the surface, after soil subsides, and others have soil removed from direct contact with the roots.

Newly planted trees and shrubs tend to rock in a strong wind, leaving a space between the soil and main stem (or stems) which allows frost to reach the roots. Such spaces must be eliminated. When soil is of a sticky nature it helps to spread a little dry compost or peat moss over the surface before any attempt is made at firming.

At the same time it is wise to firm soil around brussels sprouts, kale, and spring cabbage. All members of the cabbage family fail to produce if roots are loose in the soil, including wallflowers.

Another precaution is to bank soil around stems of the winter greens to give support in a strong wind. As plants are buffeted, the roots are loosened and sometimes broken.

Discrimination 'Widespread' In Housing

TORONTO (CP) — Michael Rubenstein, president of the Jewish Labor Committee of Canada, said Friday night racial discrimination in housing is widespread in Canada and is bringing humiliation and suffering to members of minority groups.

Mr. Rubenstein, a Montreal lawyer, condemned discriminatory housing policies in an address to the committee's 25th anniversary conference.

The committee represents 10,000 Jewish members of trade unions in Canada and Jewish labor fraternal groups. It co-operates with the Canadian Labor Congress in conducting a human rights education program.

Mr. Rubenstein criticized the federal government for not enacting legislation banning housing discrimination to the National Housing Act.

Bright, Roomy Home Good for Large Family

Providing the convenience of a bungalow on the ground floor and two additional bedrooms upstairs, this roomy 1½-storey design by architect Earl R. Dunlop, of Toronto, will appeal to the larger family.

The living room, with its fireplace and large window overlooking the street, has doors rather than an archway making it possible to close the room off from the rest of the house. This increases privacy which is an important consideration in small houses. Of particular interest to the housewife is the kitchen with its convenient U-shaped working area and space for a dining table. The bedroom on the ground floor and its adjoining washroom is another noteworthy feature.

The total floor area is 1,315 square feet and the exterior dimensions are 33 feet, eight inches, by 24 feet, eight inches. Working drawings for the house, known as Design 320, may be obtained from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at minimum cost.

For Safety in Wiring — Leave It to Experts

While the average homeowner is quite capable of changing a burned out light bulb or replacing a blown fuse, any changes or repairs to the electrical system of a house should be entrusted only to a qualified electrician.

This is particularly important if additional outlets are to be installed as each electrical circuit in the house is rated to carry only a limited power load. If extra outlets are to be provided it may be necessary to alter the circuits or install a fusebox that will accommodate more circuits. In certain cases, lead-in wires may have to be replaced with wires of heavier gauge.

RIGHT FUSES

The use of fuses of the proper rating is essential for overrated fuses will cause the wires in the circuit to heat when too many appliances, or appliances which use a large

CNR Opposes Tax Cut Plan

Gordon Favors Direct Payments Over CPR's Grain Rate Scheme

OTTAWA (CP)—The publicly-owned CNR today rejected a CPR plan to get income tax relief to offset losses in hauling western export grain.

"The Canadian National opposes the Canadian Pacific's method of solution," said CNR President Donald Gordon when he went before the royal commission on transportation today.

"It is our considered view that the use of the income tax act as an instrument of relief confuses the federal tax policy with assistance given to a particular industry. It obscures both the amount and purpose of the subsidy."

Both railways Friday proposed a government subsidy to cover annual losses of about $65,300,000 on carrying Prairie grain to export terminals at statutory levels set 60 years ago.

SPLIT ON METHOD

But they split apart today on the question of how the proposed government assistance would be paid to the railways. The CPR wants an income tax credit; the CNR wants a straight payment.

Mr. Gordon said the CNR's plan would involve about $63,000,000 a year in federal assistance—$35,000,000 to the CPR and $28,000,000 to the CNR.

Under the CPR tax-deduction proposal the amount would be exactly half that—$31,500,000 a year—at the present 50-per-cent corporation tax deduction.

CNR WOULD LOSE

The CNR president told the commission that the CPR tax credit plan would leave the privately-owned railway in the same net position even if it got the whole amount "but the CNR would receive only 50 per cent of the compensation it would be entitled to."

The CNR is liable to income tax but does not pay any when it has a deficit. The federal government makes up any deficit on the publicly-owned railway.

"The question of whether a company pays or does not pay income tax has no relationship to the amount of compensation it should receive for its services, nor has it any local place in calculating that amount," Mr. Gordon said.

He said income tax relief "could be construed as a device to hide subsidization to the shippers."

GUATEMALA REDS AIDED BY CUBANS IN PLOT?

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Guatemala charged today that Premier Fidel Castro's brother and another high Cuban official are aiding a "Communist and pro-Communist" group bent on overthrowing the Guatemalan government.

Cuba rejected the charges as totally false and said they were made primarily to influence Guatemala's congressional elections scheduled Sunday.

The charges were made before an unusual session of the council of the organization of American states by Guillermo Saenz De Tejada H., Guatemala's representative.

CAMPAIGN FOR CASTLE

Family History Bid First Step to Museum

First project of the recently organized Society for the Preservation and Maintenance of Craigdarroch Castle will be to ask Greater Victoria School Board to accept and hang in the grand entrance hall a framed and illustrated history of the Dunsmuir family and their fabulous castle.

The society hopes that the castle, built in the 1880s, will become a "public museum" and when the school board finds other quarters.

GIFT OF AUDAIN

The framed history will be the gift of Hon. Robert Dunsmuir's great-grandson, James G. P. Audain, who was elected first vice-president of the new society at its organizational meeting in the board room—once the castle's 50-guest dining room.

Mr. Audain's mother was Sarah Byrd (Birdie), eldest daughter of Hon. James Dunsmuir, premier of B.C., 1900-02, and Lieutenant-Governor, 1906-09.

Elected first president of the society was James K. Nesbitt, 1956-59 chairman of Victoria section, B.C. Historical Association, and lecturer at Victoria College on Victoria and B.C. history.

Other officers are Mrs. W. Lloyd Morgan, second vice-

Members of the executive are Mayor Percy Scourrah, Miss Inez Mitchell, Richard B. George, J. Courtney Haddock and Mrs. Edith Luney.

MONEY NEEDED

Heading the list of charter members are Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Frank Ross, Premier and Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett, Mayor and Mrs. Scourrah, Times publisher Stuart Keate and Mrs. Keate.

Mr. Nesbitt told the meeting progress of the society is bound to be slow. First needs are a large membership, a healthy bank account and storage space for furniture and other articles which will be given to the castle.

He said no pressure must be exerted on the school board which would interfere with its important day-to-day work.

ACROSS THE PROVINCE

Unions Ask Welfare Fund Probe

VANCOUVER—Two building-trades unions have asked Attorney-General Bonner to investigate their employer-paid $900,000 health and welfare fund, a union spokesman said Friday.

Bruce Ballard, president of Local 168 of the Tunnel and Rock Workers Union, said he submitted the matter to Mr. Bonner.

He said his local and Local 97 of the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Ironworkers have requested the investigation.

The unions have told Mr. Bonner that the fund has paid fees on thousands of cards which should not be in the files and that it is difficult for their men to get benefits from the fund.

The plan started two years ago and is called the Construction Industries Standard Welfare Fund. Administrator is Vernon Hembling.

Employers who contribute are General Contractors Association of Vancouver, Heavy Construction Association of B.C. and the Building and Construction Industries Exchange.

The unions say the total money paid into the fund amounts to about $900,000.

Two officials of the fund said they would welcome an inspection of the books by the attorney-general's department.

Chairman David Layden and secretary Charles Savage said a probe would be welcome.

POLIO DEATH

VANCOUVER—Health department officials said Friday a 30-year-old Haney man died of polio. They said he had received no Salk anti-polio vaccine. The total number of polio deaths this year remained at 13 because one death earlier attributed to polio was caused by another disease. The total number of cases this year is 109.

WIFE TO APPEAL

VANCOUVER—Mrs. Weldon Chan, wife of the Chinese deportee who has been hiding for more than a month, will leave for Ottawa Sunday night to make a personal appeal to Immigration Minister Fairclough, her lawyer said Friday night.

The lawyer, Harry S. Fan, said Mrs. Chan sold her engagement ring to pay for the trip. The couple's daughter, Alice, five, will accompany her.

Mr. Fan said Mrs. Chan will stop over at Toronto and will arrive in Ottawa Monday morning. She hopes to see Mrs. Fairclough Tuesday.

Chan has been missing since Nov. 2, the day before he and his family were due to be deported to Hong Kong.

The family came to Canada on a visitor's permit and later applied for permanent residence. The application and a subsequent appeal were turned down and they were ordered deported.

MARRIAGES LEGALIZED

GRAND FORKS—Another step toward preserving the law-abiding quiet that has settled over British Columbia's Doukhobor country is slowly taking place in this Kootenay Valley community.

Doukhobor marriages dating back 50 years have been made legal and registered in a special court sitting under Magistrate William Evans, Nelson.

Magistrate Evans, sitting as a special marriage commissioner, has heard 350 applications for recognition of marriages performed according to Doukhobor custom.

All 350 have been recognized and legalized and the children of these couples have become legitimate under the court rulings.

Magistrate Evans expects that at least 1,000 will be registered before his sittings are completed. He will hear applications here until the end of the week, then go to other Doukhobor communities.

$76 Bonus for Chest From William Head

Inmates of the open-type penitentiary at William Head have subscribed $76 to the Christmas bureau—one of the agencies served by the Community Chest.

"This is a remarkable achievement since they receive only 25 cents a day and have only 20 cents to spend," a Chest official said today.

There are about 70 men at the penitentiary.

A man named Harold was elected chairman of the prisoners' welfare committee and in handing over the $76 he said:

"This community has been kind to us and we still like to feel we are a part of it. So we decided to chip in all we could for the sake of those in need this Christmas."

The inmates are also repairing children's toys for the Cosmopolitan Club.

Harold said he and his fellow inmates were grateful for the entertainment put on at William Head by Victoria people. A Christmas concert is now being organized by Jerry Gossley of "Smile Show" fame.

Total returns in the Greater Victoria Community Chest campaign stood at close to $291,000 today, but officials were doubtful if it would reach $300,000 as hoped.

NURSE ROBBED

4-Hour Delay In Reporting Purse Find

A possible lead into an early Friday evening purse-grabbing on residential Richmond Road was delayed four hours before police were informed.

A man in dark clothing who came up from behind snatched a purse containing $65 from under the arm of Jubilee Hospital emergency nurse Grace Chamberlain, 21, of 222 St. Charles, who was walking south in the 1000 block at 6 p.m.

The thief escaped over a four-foot fence at 1028 Richmond and ran up the driveway before Miss Chamberlain got a look at his face.

At 7:15, Fred Worsley, 1606 Belmont, found the purse, containing eyeglasses, driver's licence, identification and other effects—but minus the cash—in the front seat of his car parked at home.

He went to a civic election rally at Central Junior High School, then reported his find to police at 11:20 p.m.

The 1960 allocation will be made from proceeds of the 1959 campaign.

Chest officials will hold a luncheon at the Net Loft next Wednesday at 12:15 at which honor awards will be made to Victoria firms exceeding their quotas in the campaign.

MINERS BURIED ALIVE AS RIVER FLOODS PITS

OVEDO, Spain (AP)—Twelve coal miners were buried alive today in the San Antonio pit, 10 miles from here, when it was flooded by the swollen Caudal River.

The mine pumps were unable to cope with the river water entering the mine and the miners were unable to get out in time after the alarm was given. Rescue workers held out little hope of saving the 12.

Paris, Rome on Film For Young Baptists

At an open meeting next Friday at 8 p.m., the Central Baptist Young People's Group will present Dr. J. B. Rowell in a second illustrated lecture based on recent travels in Europe.

The films, in color, will include Seeing Paris, Geneva and the Monument of the Reformation; Rome—St. Peter's and Scala Sancta, the holy stairway which "Luther was climbing on his hands and knees when God arrested him" and Chiesa del Cappucini, the chamber of skulls and skeletons.

SIU THWARTED

VANCOUVER—The independent Seafarers International Union has failed in a bid to have men who joined a rival union dismissed from Westward Shipping Co. Ltd.

Mr. Justice T. W. Brown Friday refused to order the firm to lay off the 18 men involved.

The SIU, involved in a jurisdictional fight on the west coast with the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers (CLC), had applied for a court injunction demanding the dismissals after the men signed with the brotherhood and had been expelled from the union.

The union said that under its closed-shop agreement the expelled men must be dismissed but the company refused to do so.

The court decision is considered a key development in the struggle between the two unions for representation of west coast seamen.

Welsh Guard Charged With Murder

LONDON (AP)—Michael Dowdall, 18-year-old Welsh guardsman arrested after a nation-wide man hunt for "Scarnose Mick," was charged Thursday with the murder of a beautiful brunette woman a year ago.

Dowdall, who has served as Buckingham Palace sentry, was accused in a local court of murdering Veronica Murray, 31, who was found naked and battered to death in her London apartment last December.

Dowdall's lawyer, Desmond Trenner, said:

"In view of the nature of the evidence and sensational aspects I may well be applying to have the evidence taken in camera."

Magistrate Clyde Wilson ordered Dowdall held until Dec. 21 and said the question of hearing testimony in secret would be discussed later.

The hunt for "Scarnose Mick" began after a series of attacks on women recently. Police said the man they were looking for was dangerous.

Dowdall was arrested Nov. 25 at his barracks near London. He was promptly charged with housebreaking and theft, but no murder charge was mentioned until Thursday.

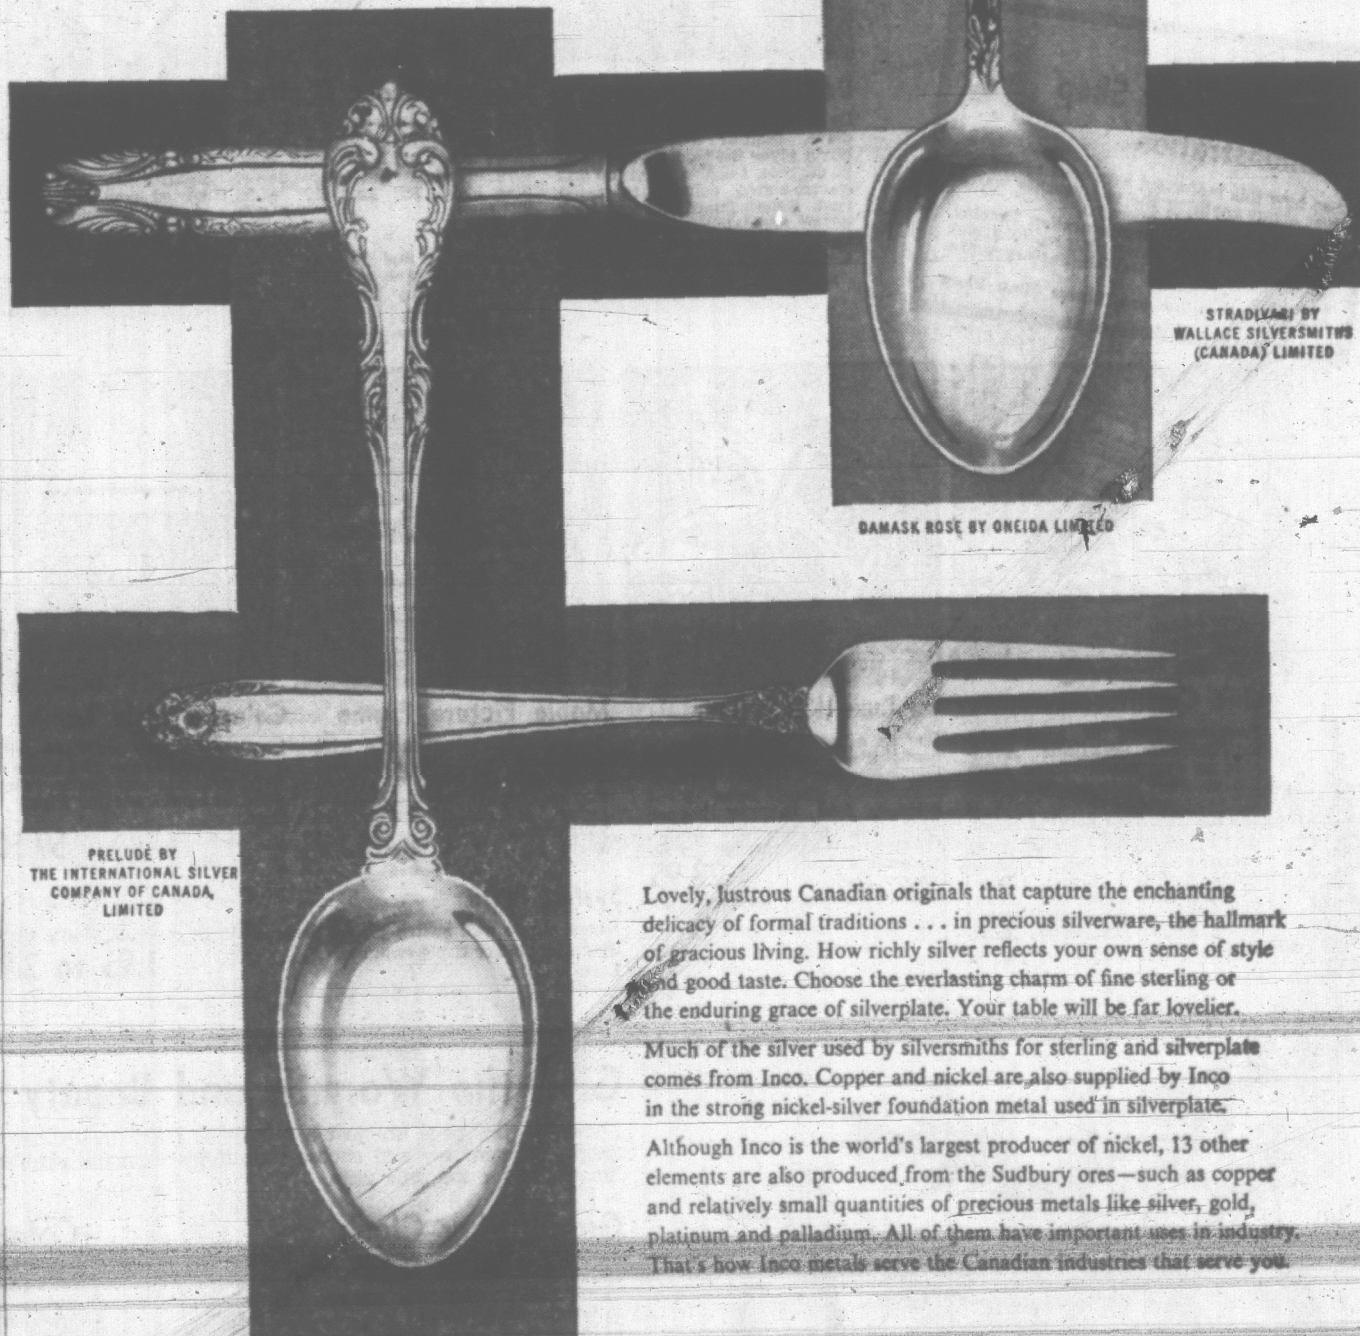

Royal Oak Elementary School PTA will hold a short business meeting Monday at 8 p.m. to be followed by a Christmas party.

'No Easy Deals With Russia'

Eisenhower Tells Italian Leaders That Western Unity Comes First

ROME (CP) — President Eisenhower told Italy's leaders today the United States never will sacrifice Western unity for the sake of a quick, easy deal with the Soviet Union.

He made the pledge to Premier Antonio Segni on the second day of his visit to Rome, first stop on his 11-country "mission of peace."

Informed sources said the American president, in his talks with Segni, asserted that the United States favors pressing ahead with regional defence alliances such as the Atlantic Pact until there are safeguarded agreements with the Russians.

This morning Eisenhower declared that his objective in his global goodwill tour is to help create a better world for his grandchildren than he knew himself. He made this pledge before going into the talks with Segni and the other government leaders.

INTERPRET AMERICA

Standing before about 900 Italian and American employees of the U.S. Embassy here, Eisenhower made a solemn pledge to "try to interpret America to other people a little bit more emphatically."

European Press Hails Ike's Tour

ROME (Reuters) — European newspapers of every political hue are warmly hailing President Eisenhower's visit here.

The official Communist party newspaper L'Unita says Italians feel "a new dawn of peace is at hand."

An independent West German newspaper says Eisenhower is proving that Nikita

a little bit more accurately than has been done."

The president went to the embassy directly from placing a wreath at the tomb of Italy's unknown soldier.

This was the first of a round of activities on his second rain-whipped day in the eternal city. From the embassy the president went to Quirinal Palace and started his talks with Segni.

The persistent downpour which attended his arrival Friday continued, but it appeared to have no effect on the president's high spirits.

While roadside crowds shouted "Viva Ike," he waved smilingly from the rolled-down window of his closed car as he rode to and from the wreath ceremony. The rain swept the crowd down to about 9,000 at the ceremony.

The first two days of the president's 22,000-mile tour of 11 countries have been demanding, but Eisenhower, although he seemed a bit tired at times, appeared to be taking it in stride.

Khrushchev has no monopoly on "personal diplomacy." In London the Conservative paper Daily Mail, in an editorial headlined "epic journey," calls Eisenhower's trip a supreme effort to maintain the momentum of the peace movement and give unity to the West and confidence to the neutrals.

DALAI LAMA WON'T SEE IKE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States has quietly turned down an overture by the exiled Dalai Lama of Tibet for a meeting with President Eisenhower in India next week.

Officials said the U.S. was "indirectly" sounded out on the idea after the Dalai Lama publicly expressed hope that he might meet Eisenhower. There was no direct communication between the 23-year-old Buddhist god-king and the president.

CANADA'S STAKE IN JAPAN

Industrial Giant Poses Challenge

This is the seventh in a series of articles by the editor of the Times after a visit to Japan at the invitation of that country's government.

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

When I visited it a few weeks ago the great Kanebo textile mill in Osaka was running cloth through its dyeing and printing presses at the rate of 150 yards a minute. Despite this speed, the finished product looked infinite in variety, exquisite in color, superb in quality. Any Canadian who supposes that Japan's products are made mainly by hand labor in sweat shops should see this gigantic plant—light, airy, almost entirely automatic and equipped with the most modern machines yet invented.

As I watched the miles of cloth enter the press as crude bleached cotton and emerge, minutes later, a quarter of a mile away, as lovely patterned stuff for women's dresses, men's shirts, window drapes, or any other conceivable use, a travelling crane dropped two huge wooden bales of finished export products nearby. One of them bore the address of Vancouver, the second of Medicine Hat.

Here, then, in one article among thousands was the kind of competition which the industry of Canada must meet, not only in its own market, but in markets throughout the world.

The issue before Canada and other Western nations was as clear in that mill as it had been in the English on the moving cloth. They can compete with Japan by improving their techniques and holding down their costs; or they can drive Japan out of their markets by import restrictions and, if they do, will certainly drive it into the Communist empire's sphere rather than later.

"Nobody," one of Japan's leading capitalists told me, "could hate Communism more than I do. Of course it would be the end of me and everything I own. But if there is nowhere else to go for a living, Japan will go to the other side, over my dead body. Look at my people! They must eat."

I looked at his people in several of the nation's major industries and in countless tiny workshops where simple trinkets are fashioned by hand and the components of com-

BOY RESCUES BROTHERS BUT DIES WITH SISTER

WARREN, Ont. (CP)—A 10-year-old boy and the sister he was trying to save both died in their burning farm home today in this community 35 miles east of Sudbury.

Two other children escaped because of the efforts of the boy, Ernie Salemin, one of the four children of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Salemin. But he and his sister, Maria, 8, were overcome by smoke and died in the blaze.

Police said the fire broke out about 7 a.m. while the mother and father were in the barn and the children were still in bed. Ernie roused his brothers, Willie, 13, and Alex, 11, and got them onto the porch roof by smashing a window.

BUT SMITH TOPS QUIZ

Scurrah Wins On Applause

By JOHN MIKA

About 600 persons Friday night gave Mayor Percy Scurrah 52 seconds of applause, J. Donald Smith 37 seconds, and Robert Macmillan 11 seconds after the three mayoralty candidates spoke on the same public platform.

They met before the same audience for the first time in the current hot election campaign at the annual Junior Chamber of Commerce civic forum in Central Junior High School.

Mayor Scurrah was called to the microphone to answer a few questions after the speeches were over but the audience peppered Mr. Smith with three times as many—despite chairman Eric Charman's plea that the crowd aim questions at other candidates. Mr. Macmillan, an ex-alderman who entered the race only Thursday only minutes before nominations closed, did not draw a single query.

Main discussion centred on the $1,000,000 View Street parking bylaw that was blocked by Mr. Smith's current lawsuit.

Lone Heckler Draws the Laughs

Mild heckling prevailed throughout most of the meeting, coming mainly from Hal Beasley, former Olympic runner, who described himself as

"just an old-time" to reporters. His quips frequently brought laughter from the crowd.

But Ald. Arthur Dowell at one point made an angry outburst during Mr. Smith's speech.

Mr. Smith claimed he presented a petition of "nearly 5,000 names" seeking a revote on the View Street bylaw when he addressed city council earlier this year.

"You did not," cried out Ald. Dowell. "Tell the truth."

After the meeting, Ald. Dowell said he was in the chair at that particular council session as acting mayor and Mr. Smith did not present any petition of any kind to the council.

Mayor Scurrah, who spoke first after the three men drew lots, offered himself for a third term "because I believe

Det. Edward Egan (Alias Santa)

THIS SANTA NO MYTH

'You Better Watch Out...'

By LAMAR FALKNER

NEW YORK (AP)—Santa Claus has his eye on bad boys and girls, and he isn't waiting for Christmas Eve to leave sticks and stones in their stockings.

A rather tired and frowny Santa stood on Harlem Street corners during the last two weeks clanging his bell and singing Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer.

In his pockets he carried lollipops. In his hand he rattled a container for coins. In his head he carried a photo-and-data file on drug traffickers.

SANTA'S HELPERS

Always near Santa were his helpers—two down-and-out loafers. When Santa spotted a familiar face in the crowd, he would shift his bell from one hand to the other. The loafers would saunter over, discreetly separate the face from the crowd, and search him.

Sometimes they found that the suspect's holiday cheer stemmed from the dope in his pocket—in which case the suspect was told the facts of life: this was not the real Santa Claus at all but just a playlike Santa, namely narcotics squad detective Edward Egan. The helpers were detectives Richard Pardo and Salvatore Grosso.

Friday, as Pardo and Grosso closed in on Kathleen Johnson, 27, the woman dropped 10 envelopes, each containing enough heroin for one injection. Pardo and Grosso pretended to overlook the envelopes, but Santa Claus Egan shuffled over and absent-mindedly picked them up.

At a police station, the woman demanded: "What are you pulling me in for? You haven't got any evidence!"

WAIT FOR SANTA

"Wait 'til Santa comes," replied Detective Pardo. In another incident, what appeared to be a Harlem housewife coyly dropped a coin in Santa Egan's cup and held out her hand for a lollipop. Egan shifted his clattering bell and his helpers moved in.

The housewife turned out to be something of a masquerader, too—not a housewife at all but rather Fred (Beaut) Cotton, 35, in woman's attire complete with lady's shoes and girdle. Grosso and Pardo said they found 30 packets of heroin on him.

Steel Talks Resume

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Union and management negotiators in the steel dispute met together with federal mediators today but failed to express any optimism about reaching a settlement urged by President Eisenhower.

'A LIFE TRANSFORMED IS INDEED A MIRACLE'

"It is indeed a miracle," said Dr. Lotta Hirschmanova on her visit here this week, "to completely transform the life of a little child."

This is the objective of the "Korean Crippled Kiddies Fund" drive on behalf of the Unitarian Services Committee started by the Times.

Money raised will build a rehabilitation centre for maimed children in Seoul.

Since the Christmas appeal

opened Friday, the fund has already passed the $400 mark. International work of the USC, endorsed by the United Nations, Canadian and U.S. governments, has also a fundamental appeal to individuals. Function is loving, yet non-sentimental; imaginative, yet practical.

Red tape is slashed and expenses of operation held thin.

Volunteers work across Canada on behalf of the USC, and

Faces 'Greatest Danger'

WASHINGTON (AP)—A declining military position has left the United States facing the greatest danger in its history, a university research group said today.

In a study prepared for the Senate foreign relations committee the group called for an all-out effort to develop a powerful, reliable ballistic missile and get it into full-scale production.

"The military position of the United States declined in the short span of 15 years from one of unchallenged security to that of a nation both open and vulnerable to direct and devastating attack," said the study prepared by a Johns Hopkins University research group.

At the same time, developments in military technology in the Soviet Union now make it appear Russia will be the first to achieve a comprehensive missile arm, the study continued. It added:

"It is this possibility that disturbs those who see in the 'missile gap' of the early 1960s the greatest danger to its security that the United States has ever faced."

OPPOSES DISARMAMENT

The study strongly opposed an arms control policy aimed at total disarmament, as suggested by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev. It argued such policy would permit a violator to gain supremacy through concealed production of relatively few weapons.

Instead, it urged the United States to strive for an agreement with Russia calling for strategic forces "limited to retaliatory systems capable of surviving a first strike, but insufficient for employment in a first strike."

The Johns Hopkins researchers took issue with those who have urged a shift of emphasis from military to economic aid abroad.

"While military defence needs to be supplemented by economic psychological and other policies," it said, "the provision of adequate and appropriate military strength is the precondition of world security."

UN Hungary Debate Set

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The UN announced today the General Assembly will meet Monday to debate question of Hungary.

Sir Leslie Munro of New Zealand, UN special representative on the question, will present a report in which he speaks of "the imminent possibility of further executions" of anti-Communists.

The debate is expected to run through Tuesday.

Long Range Plans Airport Need

By HAL MALONE
Times Business Editor

The public relations department of Canadian Pacific Air Lines which regularly trots out mounds of material on such items as number of stewardesses with

pilots with green eyes, came up with some interesting statistics this week on the runway situation at Pat Bay Airport.

CPA's most interesting revelation was that effective Jan. 2, its DC-6B aircraft will make a weekly landing from Honolulu on Pat Bay's abbreviated 5,030-foot runway.

This is extremely good news. It takes Victoria out of the "short ferry service" league and advances it to the status of an international port of call.

How long Victoria will remain in the upper air port strata depends, however, on the length of time it takes the federal government to spend money to lengthen and strengthen the runway system at Pat Bay.

To explain why CPA will not use Pat Bay as a takeoff point for its Honolulu-bound DC-6Bs, the PR man pointed out the existing runway (5,030 feet) is insufficient for the aircraft to take off with a full payload plus the 4,180 gallons (29,250 lbs.) of fuel required for the long hop. To carry the burden, the runway must be 6,620 feet long.

Even if Ottawa jumped in and lengthened the runway to 6,000-plus feet, there is no real guarantee that Victoria will retain its international port-of-call rating.

The reason: CPA's Bristol Britannia aircraft is not permitted to land or land at Victoria due to short runways. The Britannia requires a minimum 8,000-foot runway to land and an 8,550-foot strip for take-off.

Nearly everyone knows that the DC-6B is a piston-propelled aircraft and that the Britannia is a prop-jet affair. The prop-jets are relatively new to commercial runs. They are also exceptionally popular and profitable.

At Los Angeles travellers stand in line for a chance to ride the jets, while piston-engine craft take off with empty seats.

If this trend is projected CPA will have to convert wholly to jets or it could find itself floundering with a flock of DC-6Bs and other piston craft.

The short-term outlook on the development at Pat Bay calls for a runway of at least 6,000 feet to permit DC-6Bs to take off. Looking at the long-range view, it would seem more practical and economical to lengthen the runways to 8,550 feet for the day when CPA will begin and terminate international flights here.

Two Reeves a Shoo-In Unless Weekend Stirs Up Opponents

The Reeves of Saanich and Esquimalt today are less than 48 hours away from re-election by acclamation.

No one so far is contesting the seats held by Reeve George Chatterton of Saanich and Reeve A. C. Wurtele of Esquimalt.

Deadline for filing nominations is noon Monday.

The Saanich elections are expected to be hotly contested. Two new council candidates today tossed their hats into the election ring, raising the number of contestants to five.

The first, Abert W. Reid,

3305 Gordon Head, a retired publisher and well-known businessman, is a comparative newcomer in municipal politics. He was among eight candidates who ran in this year's June by-election, polling the most votes after Coun. Joseph Casey, who won the seat.

Mr. Reid favors town planning, is sympathetic to the problems of Saanich farmers. He also believes there should be some adjustments in assessing older homes affecting people with fixed incomes.

"I think there has been too much disharmony on Saanich council in the past six months," he said in announce-ing his candidature. "Personal conflicts have been permitted to interfere with the administration of municipal business."

The other new candidate is Gregory Cook, 1091 Laburnum, a manual arts teacher, who has been unsuccessful in several municipal elections.

Other candidates are veteran Coun. Leslie Passmore, Coun. Stanley Murphy, who will seek re-election, and Ian H. Campbell, 3038 Wesley, an ironworker employed at HMC Dockyard.

TWO RALLIES

Two election rallies are scheduled for next Thursday to provide ratepayers with an opportunity of hearing and meeting the candidates. They will be held in the Royal Oak Women's Institute Hall and at St. George's Hall at 8 p.m.

A lively contest is also scheduled for a vacant seat on the board of School District 63, which takes in the rural area of Central Saanich and Sidney.

To date three candidates have filed nomination papers.

They include Fred Berg, 4576 Wilkinson Road, employed as regional construction supervisor of Veterans Land Act for the Vancouver Island area. He is a former physical education instructor.

The others are Louis Schmitz, 5246 Parker, Cordova Bay, a machinist at HMC Dockyard, and Mrs. J. M. Thomas, 4781 Timber Place.

In School District 61, Mrs. Francis M. B. Thompson will run again for office.

Saanich ratepayers will also vote on a referendum asking them if they approve of council taking $30,000 from general revenue for establishment of a special fund for future park development.

All municipalities will vote on fluoridation.

There is a possibility that Esquimalt voters will have only the fluoridation referendum on their ballots this year unless some last-minute candidates come forward to contest the

THEATRE PACKED

Brakeman's Antics Draw 3,000 Fans

Brakeman Bill and Crazy Donkey, the popular TV duo, attracted nearly 3,000 children to the Odeon Theatre today and their two stage shows were fairly drenched with laughter and applause.

Brakeman, who in real life is Bill McLain of Seattle, drove through the streets of Victoria in a locomotive used in the May 24 parade by HMCS Naden and was welcomed outside the Odeon by a crowd of children and adults.

The theatre was already packed when he entered.

"It was certainly a wonderful welcome," Bill said.

The parade started from the Olde England Inn on Lamson Street, where Bill is staying. Hundreds of children came to see him off and a number rode with him in the locomotive.

"There was no holding them," said Sam Lane, proprietor of the Olde England Inn, who arranged the visit.

Brakeman Bill received another enthusiastic reception from children at the Queen Alexandra Solarium, Gordon Head which he visited at the request of Mrs. John Jervis, whose son Christopher is a patient there.

He has conducted his daily TV program over Channel 11 Seattle-Tacoma for four years. Before that he had three years with the program on radio.

MONTE ROBERTS

Meet our newest contributor, Pete the Beat, who is kind enough to address us residents of squaresville on the subject of the Space Age.

Like, what I want to know is, what's with this jazz about out of this world and like that?

Here I am, I got a good pad, who wants I should take off for the moon, like?

So there's this monk, his handle is Sam, and I read in the flacks this Sam—he's a Monk, man not a Man—I read he is hustled off his pad and shot in a thing-up so high it's too far down.

Like, man, this monk is on his pad, keeping his nose clean, and then—zoom—he's out in the wild blue wander.

Man, this is a drag. What kind of jazz would you call it if you were yanked off your pad and shot—zoom—into the wild blue wander?

You'd say this was strictly from outsville, that's what you'd say.

You'd say, gimme back my pad, my loafer bread, and my jugga gin.

So what you think the Monk, this Sam, said?

What he said, man, is let's get back to my pad, like.

So these guys from squaresville, these thinker-dinkers, what do they do?

They shoot Sam the Monk 55 miles into the wild blue wander, and they bring him back 55 miles and then dunk him in the wild blue ocean.

Like Sam the Monk is a yo-yo, and who pulls the strings?

Egg-heads strictly from thinksville.

Which if they were in an elevator in a 12-storey building, they would get off at the second floor and see if Sam the Monk could make it to the 22nd storey and still be in alivenessville.

Man, I don't dig this jazz, so I think I'll stick to my own pad, like, and I wish I could say the same for Sam the Monk.

Wreckage Flies 61 Yards After Car-Truck Collision

Car parts were scattered over 61 yards of Trans-Canada Highway near Admirals at 5 a.m. today when a naval seaman's car was wrecked in collision with a five-ton fuel truck.

Driver Dennis Bacon, HMCS Venture, received only leg abrasions in the crash which tore the left side of his car.

Truck driver Donald Alexander, 350 Sylvia, employed by Ideal Fuel, escaped without injury and his truck came through with only a cut rear tire, which took the brunt of impact.

DROWNED

Saanich police said it appeared Bacon drowsed off and his car went across the highway centre line into the forward section of the big truck's tandem rear axle.

"It's a miracle he (Bacon) was not more seriously hurt. There were pieces of car lying all over the road from side to side for about 61 yards," a constable said.

Missing Boy Reported Sleeping In Movie Theatre

A stocky, 10-year-old boy missing from a Saanich foster home since Wednesday afternoon was reported to have been selling newspapers on downtown street corners and sleeping in a movie theatre for the past three nights.

City police were told a woman who recognized the boy saw him downtown Thursday and tried unsuccessfully to get him into her car.

The boy is Charles Shepherd, described as having a round face, ruddy complexion, brown eyes, brown crewcut, four feet 10 inches tall and wore blue jeans, grey and blue t-shirt, grey sweater, red striped shirt and black boots.

'Boom' Data To Peak On Monday

Defence Minister George Pearkes will study official reports "first thing Monday morning" on the sonic explosion in Victoria last Wednesday when four U.S. jet fighters broke the sound barrier simultaneously.

The rumble caused a mild panic among residents.

He told the Times by telephone from Ottawa today the matter has been brought to his attention.

Asked if Victorians could be notified ahead of any further sonic blasts or if U.S. fighter aircraft would be asked to conduct future manoeuvres over open waters, Gen. Pearkes said: "Wherever these planes break the sound barrier there's bound to be a bit of an explosion, you know."

The minister said he had not yet received a telegram of protest sent by Mayor Percy Scurrell.

Chief John Blackstock called for advance warning of jet fighter exercises to prevent panic.

Airport Plans 'Alive'—Pearkes

If plans for expansion of Patricia Bay Airport have been permanently shelved, Defence Minister George Pearkes knows nothing about it.

The member from Saanich-Esquimalt told the Times by telephone from Ottawa today the "last I heard plans to go ahead with expansion at the airport were still in effect but they may not be implemented in the near future."

The minister was commenting on a statement by M. R. Eaton, past president, Sidney Chamber of Commerce, who said he had reliable information the federal government will not extend runways and build a new administration building at Patricia Bay airport.

Mr. Eaton said the expansion is "absolutely a dead duck as far as the federal government is concerned."

MONEY DIVERTED?

He also claimed to have information that money available for the projects had been transferred away from the west coast. In his opinion, it would be used to extend runways at Toronto's Malton airport.

"I have no information on this at all," said Gen. Pearkes.

"It's properly a department of transport matter but as the member for Saanich-Esquimalt I have been in close contact with Transport Minister Hees and he has never indicated expansion will not go ahead."

Gen. Pearkes was "surprised" and "delighted" to learn that Canadian Pacific Airlines plans to land a weekly flight from Honolulu at Patricia Bay airport commencing Jan. 2. But he declined to comment on whether airport runways would be lengthened from 5,030 feet to 6,620 feet to allow DC-6B planes to take off.

Mayor Percy Scurrell said he couldn't believe plans have been shelved.

Extension of the runways would give Patricia Bay a "good chance" of getting an east-bound flight from here, he said.

The mayor said when he was in Ottawa recently he was assured the only holdup was that plans hadn't been completed by architects.

"There were no ifs, ands or buts. We were going to get the runways and the building," Chamber of Commerce president W. A. Pendray said.

"They have to do something. We'll just keep pounding away at them until they do."

Times Carol Sheet To Appear Tuesday

The Times annual Christmas carol sheet will appear in all editions next Tuesday.

It contains a selection of carols and Christmas songs suitable for parties during the festive season and has proved highly popular each year.

READY TO MEET U.S.

United Front On Columbia

Complete agreement on future development of the Columbia River in co-operation with the United States was reached by federal and provincial ministers meeting here Friday.

External Affairs Minister Howard Green and other officials described the full-day session of the federal-provincial liaison committee on Columbia development as "very fruitful."

Its job was to agree on a united stand on the Canadian position in negotiations with the U.S.—and how much Canada would get out of Columbia development.

A provincial official said of the conference:

"We agreed on where we are going and we have a united front, to present to the States, which still has to get all its various agencies together on common ground."

The official added:

"We will be lucky if an international agreement on downstream benefits is reached by next spring."

After that he said there would have to be more negotiations on the engineering to be done and he felt the day was still "far off" when the first shovel would be put in the ground.

Besides Mr. Green, the liaison committee includes Resources Minister Hamilton, provincial Lands Minister Williston and Attorney-General Bonner.

The ministers were surrounded by staffs of technical experts and Gen. A. G. L. MacNaughton, Canadian chairman of the International Joint Commission, sat in on the talks.

50-50 SPLIT

Negotiations with the U.S. will be on the basic question of how much power Canada will get back from the extra generation provided on the U.S. side from water stored behind Columbia dams in Canada.

Lands Minister Williston has indicated that the committee is working on the basis of Canada getting a 50 per cent return of the extra power generated by the giant scheme.

Mr. Green said at a press conference Thursday night he expected the IJC to report in the next few weeks and he believed the Columbia development could be started by 1960.

But Friday he clarified this. He said he did not mean to imply that the actual shovel work could begin next year but that a start could be made then on the engineering phase of the massive project.

CAPT. HENNESSY... new concept.

NEW TRAINING OUTLINED NEXT WEEK

Navy Gets On-Job Pep Talk

The Royal Canadian Navy's new concept of "on-the-job" training will be explained to officers, non-commissioned officers and department heads of the Pacific Command next week.

A series of lectures will be given by Capt. Ralph L. Hennessy, director of naval training, who has been working on the project since it was instituted about a year ago.

The "on-the-job" concept came into being when the navy changed its first term of enlistment from a five to a three-year period.

Under the former five-year first "hitch" sailors received much of their training in classrooms and workshops ashore. Since the three-year plan was adopted, the navy is gradually shifting training "on the job" that is at sea.

New entries now receive basic training at HMCS Cornwallis, short training establishment on the east coast. After basic training, they can choose a specific type of trades training, but are immediately drafted to a ship.

Their training is carried out while they carry on their regular duties at sea.

Capt. Hennessy, who was executive officer of HMCS Quebec when the cruiser re-commissioned at Esquimalt, will arrive at HMC Dockyard Monday from Ottawa.

Commanding officers of all ships of the command will be briefed on the training plan by Capt. Hennessy, and heads of shore departments will also hear the lectures.

He will leave Thursday by air for San Diego, where he will join two Pacific Command destroyer escorts, HMCS Ships Ottawa and Saguenay. The ships are now exercising in California waters.

Capt. Hennessy will leave San Diego for Halifax a week from Sunday, and will repeat his lecture schedule there.

BOY RESCUES BROTHERS BUT DIES

WARREN, Ont. (CP)—A 10-year-old boy and the sister he was trying to save both died in their burning farm home today in this community 35 miles east of Sudbury.

Two other children escaped because of the efforts of the boy, Ernie Salemink, one of the four children of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Salemink. But he and his sister, Maria, eight, were overcome by smoke and died in the blaze.

Police said the fire broke out about 7 a.m. while the mother and father were in the barn and the children were still in bed.

BUT SMITH TOPS QUIZ

Scurrah Wins On Applause

By JOHN MIKA

About 600 persons Friday night gave Mayor Percy Scurrah 52 seconds of applause, J. Donald Smith 37 seconds, and Robert Macmillan 11 seconds after the three mayoralty candidates spoke on the same public platform.

They met before the same audience for the first time in the current hot election campaign at the annual Junior Chamber of Commerce civic forum in Central Junior High School.

Mayor Scurrah was called to the microphone to answer a few questions after the speeches were over but the audience peppered Mr. Smith with three times as many—despite chairman Eric Charman's plea that the crowd aim questions at other candidates.

Mr. Macmillan, an ex-alderman who entered the race only Thursday only minutes before nominations closed, did not draw a single query.

Main discussion centred on the $1,000,000 View Street parking bylaw that was blocked by Mr. Smith's current lawsuit.

When he addressed city council earlier this year.

"You did not," cried out Ald. Dowell. "Tell the truth."

"After the meeting, Ald. Dowell said he was in the chair at that particular council session as acting mayor and Mr. Smith did not present any petition of any kind to the council."

Wings Edge Boston

DETROIT (UPI)—The Detroit Red Wings juggled their line and played like a new team today to defeat the Boston Bruins 4-3 at Olympia Stadium.

The Wings, playing with five days rest following three straight defeats, shifted personnel throughout the game to grab the victory.

The Wings took a 1-0 lead at the midpoint of the first period when Gary Aldcorn netted a rebound from a shot by Jim Morrison. Don McKenney tied it up for Boston a little over two minutes later with a screen shot from 40 feet.

Gordie Howe put the Wings ahead to stay midway in the second period with a nifty goal on a pass from Morrison.

Lumley had a workout all day as he made 38 saves. Sawchuk, making his first start since recovering from an infection which kept him out three games, only had to kick out 17 Boston shots.

POWER PLAY

Morrison got Detroit's third goal on a power play late in the middle period. Dick Meissner was out for hooking when Morrison turned a shot from the point by Alex Delvecchio past Lumley.

Boston came back with two goals in the last period, but Val Fonteyne scored for Detroit with the period only 4:35 old and it was enough for the win.

Bronco Horvath, the National Hockey League's leading scorer, suffered a probable broken toe when hit by a puck in the middle period. He will be flown to Boston for X-rays.

The win was Detroit's 11th against eight losses and six ties, while Boston's record is 9-12-5.

'No Easy Deals With Russia'

Eisenhower Tells Italian Leaders That Western Unity Comes First

ROME (AP)—President Eisenhower and President Giovanni Gronchi expressed determination today to pursue policies aimed at reducing the armament burden throughout the world.

In a joint statement at the conclusion of two days of talks, the two leaders said their governments also are determined "to do all in their power to ensure that the 16-nation disarmament group of which both Italy and the United States are members will lay the groundwork for an acceptable solution to the problem of disarmament."

ROME (CP) — President Eisenhower told Italy's leaders today the United States never will sacrifice Western unity for the sake of a quick, easy deal with the Soviet Union.

He made the pledge to Premier Antonio Segni on the second day of his visit to Rome, first stop on his 11-country "mission of peace."

Informed sources said the American president, in his talks with Segni, asserted that the United States favors pressing ahead with regional defence alliances such as the Atlantic Pact until there are satisfactory agreements with the Russians.

'Greatest Danger' Facing Nation

WASHINGTON (AP)—A declining military position has left the United States facing the greatest danger in its history, a university research group said today.

In a study prepared for the Senate foreign relations committee the group called for an all-out effort to develop a powerful, reliable ballistic missile and get it into full-scale production.

"The military position of the United States declined in the short span of 15 years from one of unchallenged security to that of a nation both open and vulnerable to direct and devastating attack," said the study prepared by a Johns Hopkins University research group.

At the same time, developments in military technology in the Soviet Union now make it appear Russia will be the first to achieve a comprehensive missile arm, the study continued. It added:

"It is this possibility that disturbs those who see in the 'missile gap' of the early 1960s the greatest danger to its security that the United States has ever faced."

The study strongly opposed an arms control policy aimed at total disarmament, as suggested by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev. It argued such policy would permit a violator to gain supremacy through concealed production of relatively few weapons.

Instead, it urged the United States to strive for an agreement.

Industrial Giant Poses Challenge

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

When I visited it a few weeks ago the great Kanebo textile mill in Osaka was running cloth through its dyeing and printing presses at the rate of 150 yards a minute. Despite this speed, the finished product looked infinite in variety, exquisite in color, superb in quality. Any Canadian who supposes that Japan's products are made mainly by hand labor in sweat shops should see this gigantic plant—light, airy, almost entirely automatic and equipped with the most modern machines yet invented.

As I watched the miles of cloth enter the press as crude bleached cotton and emerge, minutes later, a quarter of a mile away, as lovely patterned stuff for women's dresses, men's shirts, window drapes, or any other conceivable use, a travelling crane dropped two huge wooden bales of finished export products nearby. One of them bore the address of Vancouver, the second of Medicine Hat.

Here, then, in one article among thousands, was the kind of competition which the industry of Canada must meet, not only in its own market, but in markets throughout the world.

I looked at his people in several of the nation's major industries and in countless tiny workshops where simple trinkets are fashioned by hand and the components of com-

'A LIFE TRANSFORMED IS INDEED A MIRACLE'

"It is indeed a miracle," said Dr. Lotta Hiltzmanova on her visit here this week, "to completely transform the life of a little child."

This is the objective of the "Korean Crippled Kiddies Fund" drive on behalf of the Unitarian Services Committee started by the Times.

Money raised will build a rehabilitation centre for maimed children in Seoul.

Since the Christmas appeal

opened Friday, the fund has already passed the $400 mark. International work of the USC, endorsed by the United Nations, Canadian and U.S. governments, has also a fundamental appeal to individuals.

Function is loving, yet non-sentimental; imaginative, yet practical.

Red tape is slashed and expenses of operation held to a minimum.

Volunteers work across Canada on behalf of the USC, and only paid staff is a small group at Ottawa headquarters.

Cheques may be made out to the Korean Crippled Kiddies Fund and mail donations should be addressed to the Victoria Times. Cash donations will be accepted at the Times main office, 2631 Douglas, or at the downtown office, 1215 Broad.

All donations will be acknowledged in this newspaper and will be deductible for income tax purposes.
